G. O. P. LEADERS AND ROOSEVELT DISPUTE TARIFF

Committee Praises Act as Governor Makes His Attack.

DEFENDERS SEE LEAN YEARS IF LAW FAILS

Republicans Declare Rates in Many Instances Are Not High Enough.

The Republican national committee yesterday issued a statement defending the Hawley-Smoot tariff act, and at about the same time Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, issued one denouncing it.

The statement of the Republican national committee, which was in response to growing criticism of the tariff by Democratic orators, shows that the G. O. P. is willing and ever anxious to make the tariff an issue in 1932.

"There is now ample evidence," the statement said, "to show that under present conditions the rates in the Hawley-Smoot tariff are no more than adequate, in many instances, and that in some cases perhaps not high enough."

An example of this, the committee's statement said, was the action of a Democratic member of Congress—Representative Connery, of Massachusetts—in urging the Tariff Commission to recommend a 50 per cent increase on boots and shoes.

The statement was issued three days after Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, had held a breakfast conference with President Hoover at the White House.

Corrects Erroneous Story.

Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, who now is admittedly "out in front" so far as the Democratic nomination for President is concerned, issued his tariff statement in order to correct an erroneous story that had been written after his return from France.

"Nothing I saw in Europe changed what is fairly well known as my view on the American tariff," Gov. Roosevelt said. "I continue to be convinced that the Hawley-Smoot tariff law is one of the most important factors in the present world-wide depression.

"The tariff law proved from the day it was passed a serious hindrance to the interchange of goods known as world trade. Neither American nor world-wide prosperity can return by building import-proof tariff walls around each nation. The United States can not expect merely to sell its goods without buying other goods in return and a flow of goods throughout the world markets must be restored. Our present tariff law is one of the most serious obstacles to the return of prosperity."

Industry Termed Threatened.

The statement of the Republican national committee quoted Representative Connery as saying the Massachusetts shoe industry is "threatened with extinction" unless it is given adequate protection. It also cited testimony given before the Tariff Commission showing that because of cheap labor it only costs 28 cents to turn out a pair of shoes in Czechoslovakia as against $1 for labor costs in this country.

"If our tariff wall are not maintained and the fullest protection accorded agriculture, industry and labor," the statement said, "the American standard of living must fall to European levels.

"Blind theorists, foreign interests and Democratic free traders are threatening to destroy our tariff. If this menace is not averted the American people can look forward to the leanest years ever witnessed on this continent."

Another Tariff Blast.

There also was a tariff blast from the headquarters of the Democratic national committee yesterday. Through the committee, Senator Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, assailed the contention of Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, that the high tariff policy had not affected American exports of surplus products.

"That," said Senator Hull, "is an insult to the intelligence of even the head-hunters in Africa."

"Dr. Klein's speech," he said, "was obviously a bid for 1932 money contributions to the Republican national committee."

Parade Inaugurates Memorial Day Rites Today; Rain May Fall

Underwood & Underwood.

As a Memorial Day tribute from thousands of Boy Scouts, Woodrow Miller, of Troop 89, places a flag upon the grave in Arlington Cemetery of William Howard Taft, late Chief Justice and former President.

Thousands to Figure in Programs; Arlington Central Point.

Washington's Memorial Day observance promises to be a red-letter occasion.

Countless thousands will figure in programs arranged throughout the day in and near the city, countless other thousands are flocking into Washington from all points of the compass to witness any number of events, prominent among which will be the gala air exhibition, and more than customary tribute will be paid to the Nation's heroic dead.

RAMBLING TRIO OF DETECTIVES MAKES 3 RAIDS

Alleged Speakeasies Are Invaded Quietly and Evidence Seized.

DOWNTOWN SECTION IS OBJECT OF FORAYS

Several Arrests Result, Two Women Being Included; One Place Closed.

Three headquarters detectives, using the simple method of going here and there and doing this and that, yesterday proved that suspected liquor selling and gambling places can be closed, at least for a time. They closed three of them during a busy afternoon while continuing their policy of walking about "looking for a couple of fellows."

Later police of the First Precinct barged into another alleged liquor place while answering a trouble call and took away three persons and a quantity of prohibited potables.

The headquarters men, Detective Sergts. Larry O'Dea, Howard Ogle and Arthur Fihelly, found some strange things in their tour of the first precinct yesterday, including a speakeasy which, they said, had merely moved its base of operations two doors after a raid two days ago. In all cases but one they confiscated a quantity of liquor or brew. A stout door held them back at one place, but after they were admitted they took the door along with them.

Keep Vice Squad Busy.

They kept the vice squad on the hop answering calls with part of the 22 men assigned to it, and one of the 80 men on duty in the First Precinct also came along in response to their calls, helping out in removing heavy cases of liquor to the warehouse and removing doors or holding flash powder for the headquarters photographer as he made pictures of the inside of a raided place.

The wandering trio began their demonstration that the places could be entered without battering down doors at a place on Tenth street near H northwest early in the afternoon. Sergt. Larry O'Dea in some manner had obtained a little card which was an "open sesame."

He walked up a flight from the street, knocked on the door, and flashed his card. He was greeted with a smile and a doorkeeper said:

"Come right in, gentlemen."

Sergt. O'Dea blandly responded to such hospitality and stepped inside. The doorkeeper must have recognized his partners, however, for he slammed the door and before the sergeant could admit his pals, about half a dozen men had leaped from the windows of the place to a roof a few feet below, and escaped.

Seize Quantity of Brew.

Police said the second, third and fourth floors of the place were given over to the attempt to satisfy part of Washington's thirst for home brew. They found jars, vats, malt and bottles on the fourth floor, they said, and on the second discovered a number of "cold ones" in tubs surrounded by ice. In all they carted away about 3,500 bottles of the stuff when the raiding was over.

While the vice squad cleaned up

FASCIST INSULT TO VATICAN HIT IN PAPAL NOTE

Pope Claims Violation of Lateran Concordat in Protest to Italy.

PONTIFF STRESSES PERSONAL AFFRONT

Matter Regarded as Grave, Because Attacks Were Staged in Rome.

Vatican City, May 29 (U.P.).—A formal papal representation protesting recent Fascist manifestations of hostility toward the Pope and leading Catholic organizations has been forwarded to the Italian government, it was learned tonight.

The protest, which already has been delivered or will be delivered tomorrow, said the manifestations were a serious violation of the Lateran concordat with Italy by which sovereignty of the Pope was restored after a lapse of threescore years.

Pope Cites Violations.

The representation prepared by Pope Pius contended that the insults to the Pope by the Fascist students in the last few days—including burning of the pontiff's picture and shouts of "Down with the Pope"—and attacks against members and property of the Azione Cattolica, leading Catholic layman's organization, were contrary to the Lateran concordat.

It was understood that the greatest emphasis was placed on the alleged insult to the person of the Pope, which was described as the most flagrant violation of both the concordat and the Italian government penal code, which provides that the person of the Pope must be regarded "as sacred and inviolable." This provision is similar to that which applies to the person of the king.

Relations Seriously Strained.

The representation was said to contend that the insults and attacks assumed a more grave character because many of them were perpetrated in Rome. The Concordat, it was pointed out, formally pledged the Italian government not to countenance acts injurious to the character of Rome as the seat of Catholicism because of the special situation created by the presence of the Pope in Vatican City.

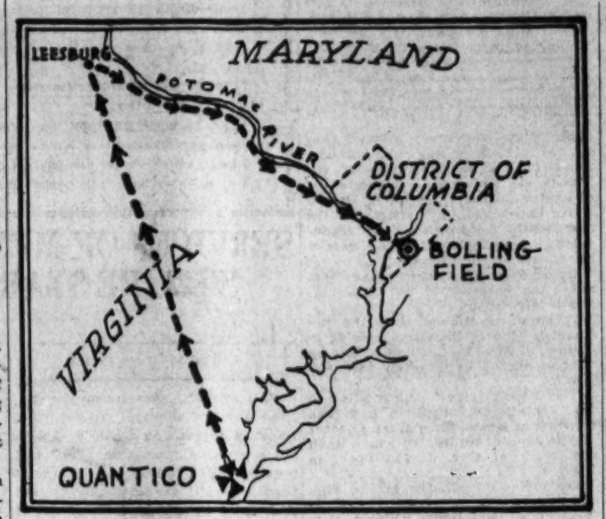
The strain on relations had been seriously increased in the last weeks due to the charges published in Catholic newspapers that Fascists had attacked or maltreated members of the Azione Cattolica, and counter-charges by Fascists that the organization was infringing on the affairs of the government in labor matters.

Helen's Departure Soon Is Denied in Bucharest

Bucharest, Roumania, May 29 (A.P.).—Official denial was made tonight of reports published abroad that Queen Helen, divorced wife of King Carol, had been ordered to leave Roumania within a specified time.

It is understood on good authority, however, that the queen has been asked to choose a residence abroad, but her departure may be delayed until the new government meets.

WORLD'S LARGEST AIR ARMADA WILL BATTLE OVER CAPITAL TODAY



The dotted line indicates the route that Uncle Sam's air armada will follow today. The planes, nearly 600 of them, will gather over Quantico, Va., fly in formation to Leesburg, Va., then turn and follow the Potomac River to Washington. The formation will be broken over Anacostia. The combat demonstration, in which 39 planes will simulate an air battle, will take place over the Potomac River between Arlington Memorial Bridge and Highway Bridge.

Nearly 600 Airplanes to Darken City's Sky in Grand Spectacle.

BOMBERS WILL OPEN COMBAT ABOVE RIVER

11:30 Is Set for Beginning of Program; 100,000 Crowd Is Expected.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Washington will swing its collective gaze upward today to behold the mightiest fleet of airplanes that ever moved across the sky at one time.

Given good weather, Uncle Sam proposes to plaster the sky with airplanes. There will be huge bombers, observation planes, swift pursuit planes and attack planes—nearly 600 of them, and all moving in formation.

Yesterday 258 planes—the greatest number seen here since Lindbergh came home—flew across the city and swooped down on Bolling Field. This spectacle, though but a prelude, was itself exciting. Bolling Field was dry, and the first planes to arrive kicked up such a cloud of dust that some of the others had to make two attempts before landing.

Ambulance Plane Attends.

Among the planes now staked down at Bolling is a big Fokker monoplane with a red cross on it. This is an ambulance, fitted out with litters and carrying a surgeon and an attendant.

Thus far, the ambulance plane has not been needed—at least not for anything growing out of a crack-up.

In one of the planes that came to Bolling Field yesterday was Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, who has been in command of the Army's Air Division since it took off from Dayton, Ohio, two weeks ago. The other planes that are to join those at Bolling Field in the great demonstration are now berthed at Langley Field, Logan Field and fields at Newcastle, Del., and Middletown, Pa.

Showers Are Forecast.

The Weather Bureau forecast for today is "cloudy and probably thundershowers." The forecaster, however, does not expect that the showers will last very long, and it may be, he says, that they will not come until late in the afternoon, if, indeed, they come at all.

The demonstration over New York was held up for three hours by rain.

Late yesterday the War Department, which is sponsoring the spectacle, was going ahead on the theory that the skies would be kind and that the program would be carried out according to schedule.

The program might be said to consist of two events—a combat demonstration and a grand review. Altogether it will last about an hour—from 11:30 to 12:30.

Combat Opens Spectacle.

First, at 11:30, the spectators will witness a combat demonstration, in which 39 planes will show what might happen if Washington were ever attacked from the air. And Army men will tell you that there are few American cities that an enemy would rather attack than Washington.

In charge of the combat demonstration will be Capt. Frank O'D. "Monk" Hunter, of Rockwell Field, San Diego, Calif. Capt. Hunter, who is in command of the famous Ninety-fifth Pursuit Squadron, brought down nine enemy planes in the World War, and today is the Army's outstanding ace.

The combat demonstration will be held over the Potomac River in an area extending approximately from the Arlington Memorial Bridge to the Highway Bridge.

Review to Follow.

The combat demonstration will be followed by the big review. From the West, following the course of the Potomac, will come the Army's great armada of nearly 600 planes.

The rendezvous, or stand-by station for the planes, will be Quantico, Va. Over the Marine cantonment there, they will fall into formation, and head for Leesburg, Va. It is not likely that they will be easily seen from Washington at that stage. Reaching Leesburg, the armada will turn, pick up the Potomac River and then follow it on down to Washington. Having reached Anacostia, the various units in the armada will "fall out" and head for Bolling Field, Langley Field, Logan Field and Middletown.

SPAIN DENIES RIFT WITH CHIEF ZAMORA

Cabinet's Statement Fails to Allay Fears Regime Faces Crisis.

Madrid, May 29 (A.P.).—After one of the longest sessions since the republic was established, the cabinet tonight emphatically denied persistent rumors that Niceto Alcala Zamora would retire as provisional president and be succeeded by Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux.

Despite the cabinet's statement that a crisis had been averted, it was generally believed tonight the government still faced a serious situation. There was some speculation in political circles as to whether the government would be able to continue without a change of personnel until the national assembly election in June.

Some opposition has been expressed to the regime of Alcala Zamora, who represents the "Right Republican party," on the ground that he is too conservative.

When Lerroux left tonight's meeting he said no member of the cabinet had resigned and the government would "continue at its post until a national assembly is elected."

Meanwhile, the peseta dropped further on the exchange to a new low level of 11.28 to the dollar. The government made further efforts to reduce shipment of currency abroad, making new arrests of violators.

Finance Minister Indalecio Prieto instructed mortgage banks to restrict mortgages on removable properties and to concede more credit to constructors in an effort to diminish unemployment.

At the town of Gijon, laborers called a 24-hour cessation of work as a protest against the killing of six persons during disorders at San Sebastian. Similar protests were held in Oviedo.

At Seville the syndicalist organization declared it would not accept any edicts of the labor minister, and asked his resignation. This was regarded as a rebellion against Labor Minister Largo Caballero, who ordered all labor organizations to abstain from agitation.

Adverse Winds Delay Flight Across Pacific

U. S. WINS DOUBLES, CLINCHES CUP PLAY

Shields and Wood Conquer Argentine Pair in 4 Sets in Thrilling Match.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

A cheery-mioned, sun-burned boy, equipped with a palisade of gleaming teeth, swung his light body of muscles through the air yesterday afternoon at the Chevy Chase Club, took a short wind-up and pasted a tennis ball with all his strength through two tense Argentinians. The ball went faster than any mind could act. It banged the court, bounded long and low, hit the green backstop and popped up and down in joyful succession—for it, indeed, was the ball which gave the United States a victory in the first North vs. South American Davis Cup tie.

It was Sidney Wood, jr., who propelled that last ball to a point and it put the finishing touch to as stirring a doubles match as has ever been seen in Washington. It gave Wood, and his partner, Frank Shields, a 6—4, 8—6, 2—6, 6—2 victory over Adriano Zappa and Lucilio del Castillo, champions of the Argentine.

It gave the United States its third victory in this interzone match, Shields and Wood both having accounted for singles victories on Thursday. Today's matches will be in the nature of exhibitions, since the necessary three out of five tallies have been marked up in America's name.

Today Bernon S. Prentice will show a new deal. He has retired Wood, to mull over his sensational play, and has named in his place for one of today's singles matches Clifford Sutter, the New Orleans youth, and the first Southerner ever to make a United States Davis Cup team. Sutter, perhaps the steadiest stroking player in the country, will meet Willy Robson, certainly the steadiest exponent in Argentina.

In the other singles match today, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, Frank Shields will match his venomous style of play against Ronaldo Boyd, the huge red-thatched mountain of man who promised much in this series and has shown little, due mostly to the fact that he has been ailing of internal injuries for several months.

Yesterday's doubles victory places America in what is known in Davis Cup matters as the interzone finals. The other finalist has not been de-

CROWLEY, DOOMED, LUNGES FOR PISTOL

New York Policeman's Slayer Hears Death Penalty Verdict With Sneer.

Mineola, N. Y., May 2 (A.P.).—With a sneer 19-year-old Francis Crowley today heard a jury convict him of murder in the first degree for the slaying of a Long Island policeman—a verdict which carries the death penalty. The jury deliberated forty-one minutes.

Then as he was about to be led from the courtroom, the 103-pound desperado, handcuffed by one wrist to a deputy sheriff, made a sudden lunge which police interpreted as an attempt to obtain the officer's pistol. The courtroom was thrown into turmoil.

A policeman's fist felled Crowley, officers and court attendants rushed forward and women screamed. Crowley, on his feet again in a moment, was soon the center of a whirling crowd of police. Screaming with rage he battled the officers, was knocked to the floor again, and finally, battered and bruised, was pinned down with several officers upon him.

Dragged to his feet and surrounded by fifteen to twenty policemen, he was hustled to a side room where he said he merely had made a quick move to kiss his foster-mother, Mrs. Anna Crowley, to bid her good-by.

A mandatory sentence of death in the electric chair will be imposed Monday morning by Judge Lewis J. Smith, who heard the case. Crowley immediately will be taken by motor to the death house at Sing Sing Prison.

The closing scene of the young gunman's trial was in keeping with the spectacular manner in which he has appeared in the public eye since the death of Patrolman Frederick Hirsch, of the Nassau County police, whom he shot down on a lonely Long Island road May 6.

That night, Crowley, first hunted in connection with the slaying of a New York policeman and of Virginia Brannen, a dance hall hostess, was sitting in a parked automobile with 16-year-old Helen Walsh.

Hirsch with Patrolman Joseph Yodice, apparently had nothing more in mind than the breaking up of "petting parties" when he stopped at the car and asked to see the driver's license. Statements of what followed were contradictory in the testimony of the State and defense, but Crowley admitted he shot and killed Hirsch.

The State contended the killing was done deliberately, and that the

DRY LAW IS DEBATED AS TAX-RAISE CAUSE

Realtors Decline to Adopt Declaration Blaming Prohibition.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 29.—The prohibition issue brought turmoil to the final session of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at its twenty-fourth annual convention here today.

Rising unexpectedly in the form of an amendment to a resolution that the President of the United States call a tax conference, it brought scores of members to their feet in both approval and denunciation of the proposition that the dry law, because it allegedly has cut down Federal, State and municipal revenues, contributes to high taxation.

After a bitter discussion, in which scores of the more than 1,000 delegates crowded into the convention room spoke frankly as wets or drys, independent of the issue of taxation, the convention voted down the amendment by a close viva voce vote. It provided that the tax conference study the prohibition issue in its relation to taxation.

The resolution itself asked that the tax conference be participated in by the Federal, State and local governments, together with representatives of taxpayers, and that a means be devised for coordinating the functional operations of the Government, and that the revenue system be adjusted more nearly to meet the ability of citizens to pay. It passed easily.

Simeon E. Leland, associate professor of economics, University of Chicago, in a review of the tax problem, pointed out that taxes have risen in disproportion to the increased wealth of the Nation and the earning capacity of its citizens.

He attributed this to the existence of numerous taxing agencies—the Federal Government, the State, county and municipalities—and urged that the "whole tax system be placed under Federal control."

Such a plan, the speaker said, would mean "one tax system for the entire country, with Federal administration, Federal collection and Federal division of yield."

Among the last-minute resolutions which provoked short discussion was one urging the establishment of a system for the discount of mortgages on urban residences. It provided that the president of the association, for the purpose solely of initiating discussion, submit to Government authorities the names of not more than

Piccard Credits Luck For Flight's Success

Scientist Tells Reporters He Found Cosmic Rays Far Stronger at Stratosphere Height; Leak Menaced Lives of Explorers.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Ober Gurgl, Austrian Tyrol, May 29 (A.P.).—A slim bespectacled scientist this afternoon told newspaper men what he had found out about the stratosphere on his balloon flight Wednesday to an altitude of almost ten miles.

Although Auguste Piccard is professor of physics at the University of Brussels, there is little of the professorial in his manner when interviewed. Questions about Wednesday's balloon trip into the outer layer of the earth's atmosphere were met with impatient snorts or with boyish enthusiasm, depending on how they appealed to him.

"What color was the daytime sky as it appeared to you 50,000 feet up?" was one of the questions.

"It was a deep dark blue," he replied, "but no stars whatever were to be seen."

He said the mysterious cosmic rays which he went aloft to study were decidedly more powerful at stratosphere height than at altitudes less than the seven miles, at which the stratosphere is considered to begin. "However, until I have had time to study the notes of my flight I can not say how much more powerful," he added.

Prof. Piccard said he had not discerned any difference in the wind velocities and directions in the stratosphere from those in lower altitudes. Asked specifically if he had found confirmation of the theory that the prevailing wind in the stratosphere blew in the direction contrary to the rotation of the earth, he snorted, "That's all bosh."

Piccard frankly admitted that it was pure luck or destiny that saved him and his companion from a rocky landing after their seventeen hours' flight.

"We no longer knew where we were, and the first hint we had of touching the earth came with three gentle bumps about 9 o'clock Wednesday night," he said. Those bumps marked the alighting of the aluminum ball in a snowdrift on a desolate mountain glacier.

Prof. Piccard said the balloon was in the stratosphere sixteen out of seventeen hours of the flight, which, he added, gave the two passengers an excellent opportunity for making observations at an altitude of more than 50,000 feet.

"The only drawback," he continued, "was that the balloon rose so swiftly after the start that we were already in the stratosphere and nearly 50,000 feet up half an hour after the take-off. Consequently we did not have time to make observations at intermediate altitudes.

"We took observations of cosmic rays up to 53,000 feet. Hitherto they had been measured only up to an altitude of 30,000 feet."

The professor credited the scientific success of the trip to artificial oxygen and "normal" atmospheric pressure which they were able to maintain in the hermetically sealed gondola.

"We could have attained an altitude 3,000 feet greater if we had dropped

Lindbergh's Wife Passes Pilot Test

Proves Her Ability to Fly and Wins License to Operate Plane.

New York, May 29 (A.P.).—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh has won the rank of a full-fledged aviatrix.

The wife of the young man who four years ago made the first nonstop solo flight from New York to Paris took her final pilot's tests yesterday at the Long Island Aviation Country Club, it became known tonight, and passed them successfully.

The colonel flew his wife from their New Jersey home to the Long Island field in his big speed plane, and there Mrs. Lindbergh transferred to a lighter, two-seated open-cockpit machine. With O. P. Harwood, Department of Commerce inspector, in the forward seat, she soared aloft and landed several times with the ease and skill of an expert and etched a graceful figure against the almost cloudless afternoon sky.

Hoover Finds Philadelphia Encouraging After Capital

President, Guest at Union League Dinner, Presented Portrait of Himself; Will Speak at Valley Forge Beginning at 9:30 a. m. Today.

Philadelphia, May 29 (A.P.).—President Hoover told the Union League here tonight that after "two years of fever and tumult in Washington" the reception extended him would be an "undoubted and great encouragement" in the tasks ahead.

Speaking extemporaneously in response to a speech by George Stuart Patterson, president of the club, who presented the Chief Executive with a portrait of himself, Mr. Hoover described the club as a "sanctuary of the great tradition of loyalty to the Government of the United States."

The Union League Club was formed during the Civil War to combat organized sympathy with the Southern States. Through its portals have walked all the Republican Presidents of the United States since that time, with the exception of President Harding. He had accepted an invitation for October, but died in August, 1923.

The portrait, painted by Philides Costa, a Greek artist, was characterized by Mr. Hoover as a representation of himself he "liked much more than the very lifelike pictures the photographers make."

Mr. Hoover arrived in Philadelphia after a rapid trip from Washington and was given an enthusiastic welcome. Quick work by police, however, stopped a demonstration of striking hosiery workers. Several ley Field, Logan Field, or to whatever field they have been assigned.

They are scheduled to start for home tomorrow and Monday.

President Hoover left yesterday for Valley Forge, Pa., where he is to deliver a Memorial Day oration. Consequently, he will miss today's spectacle.

Stand Is on Bridge.

The reviewing stand, which has been established on the Arlington Memorial Bridge, will be occupied by Secretary of War Hurley, Assistant Secretary of War Davison and other notables.

Most of those who belong in that vague category labeled the general public probably will gather in Potomac Park along the river front, or at Bolling Field. Arlington National Cemetery will be another vantage point. The roofs of the more lofty buildings in the downtown section also are expected to hold their share of spectators.

On account of the great number of planes now at Bolling Field, no automobile will be allowed in that reservation today. Citizens on foot, however, will be admitted.

100,000 Crowd Expected.

Capt. R. C. Montgomery, who is in charge of the United States park police, expects that between 75,000 and 100,000 persons will gather in Potomac Park. To avoid a traffic crush, he has designated certain streets for one-way or north and south traffic.

In order to reduce as far as possible the number of automobiles that will be parked on the polo grounds, Capt. Montgomery has decided to throw open parking space behind the Navy Building and the Munitions Building. Pedestrians will be allowed on the Arlington Memorial Bridge as far as the bascule draw span.

In the combat demonstration, the spectators first will see approaching nine big bombardment planes—big Curtiss Condors, capable of carrying 4,000 pounds of bombs. What these could do to the city, Army men say, is too dreadful to imagine.

Pursuit Planes to Defend.

The bombers, however, have to contend with the pursuit or fighting planes. From high up in the sky eighteen of these speedy pursuit planes will come roaring down to make war on the bombers and drive them from the air.

Then the pursuit planes themselves will be attacked. Twelve Curtiss attack planes, assigned to protect the bombers, will close in on the pursuit planes and engage them in battle.

The combat demonstration will be concluded with an air duel between two fighting planes. In the end the planes enact a maneuver called the "serpentine," one in which the planes weave a graceful pattern across the sky.

Pastors Issue Protest Against Plane Review

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 29.—While the Army's aerial armada was roaring over Baltimore this afternoon to meet an imaginary enemy, a group of the city's clergymen—representatives of various Jewish and Christian congregations—were closeted in the Lord Baltimore Hotel, preparing a statement deploring the "war-like" maneuvers.

The ministers expressed regret at the flight of the squadrons in battle array for the following specific reasons:

Because of the fires of narrow national pride which they feed.

Because of the subconscious fear of other nations which they stimulate.

Because of the propaganda which they supply for trusting military force for the solution of international problems just at a time when the great need of civilization is the discovery and use of more effective peaceful instruments of international policy.

The statement was drafted by the Rev. Dr. Edward L. Israel, rabbi of the Har Sinai Temple, and the Rev. T. Guthrie Speers, Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church, and was signed by themselves and 20 other ministers.

more ballast," he said. "When we landed we still had 350 pounds left, but our oxygen was about used up."

Petroleum jelly and cotton waste were all that saved the balloonists from suffocation, Piccard said.

He explained that the dangling of a ground rope beat the sealed metal ball enough to spring a leak, which they soon noticed, as the artificially generated oxygen inside the ball made a hissing sound as it escaped through the leak into the rarer atmosphere outside.

"We quickly plugged the leak with a mixture of vaseline and cotton waste," Piccard said, "but this was on our minds constantly, for we realized that the vaseline-waste combination was all that was standing between us and disaster."

officer had not even drawn his gun. In this the State had the support of Helen Walsh and Yodice, the only witnesses to the shooting. Crowley testified, however, the officer attempted to shoot, that his gun missed fire and only then did Crowley fire in self-defense.

After the shooting Crowley disappeared, to be heard from again the following day, when a police cordon was thrown about an old brownstone rooming house in Ninetieth street, Manhattan, where police were informed he and the Walsh girl were hiding.

Crowley ignored a police demand to surrender and a seige was laid with hundreds of police posted in the street, at windows and on roofs. In a gun battle, Crowley exchanged shots until his ammunition was exhausted, then gave up the fight.

CONSPIRACY COUNT CONFRONTS HORTON

Lea and Caldwell Named in Impeachment Action in Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., May 29 (A.P.).—An impeachment article against Gov. Henry H. Horton was reported to the Tennessee House of Representatives today. In it he was charged with conspiring with friends to receive their financial and political support in exchange for influencing the machinery of State for their personal gain.

The article, reported by a special House committee, named Col. Luke Lea, Nashville newspaper publisher and politician, and Rogers Caldwell, former bank president, as those with whom the governor conspired.

The committee said other charges were in course of preparation. The House deferred consideration of the article presented today until next week.

While the movement to oust Gov. Horton was under way in the House, Scott P. Fitzhugh, speaker of the Senate, relinquished his chance of becoming governor, in event Horton were impeached, by resigning the speakership. He refused to reconsider his resignation, despite a vote of confidence by the Senate.

Under State laws, the speaker succeeds the governor if the latter office is left vacant.

Fitzhugh is aligned with the political faction of Representative E. H. Crump, of Memphis, which is leading the movement to impeach the governor.

The impeachment article charged that the alleged conspiracy had been continuous since Horton, as speaker of the Senate, became governor upon the death of Gov. Austin Peay, in 1927.

Lea and Caldwell, the article said, were interested in having the State float huge bond issues so that they might have the money placed in banks in which they were interested in order that it "might be available to be borrowed and used for the selfish, pecuniary advantage of the said Lea and the said Caldwell, regardless of the resulting detriment to the State."

Most of the bond issues were for highway purposes, and it was pointed out that Caldwell was interested in the manufacture of a road-building material largely used on State roads.

SERVICES OF MEMORIAL DAY WILL BE STARTED BY PARADE

Rain may fall here during the day, the Weather Bureau declared last night in forecasting "mostly cloudy, with probable thundershowers," but meteorological conditions indicated that it would be very spotty, light and likely in the late afternoon, if at all.

Arlington Cemetery, with flags fluttering over every grave, placed there yesterday by 400 Boy Scouts of the District, will be the central point in the widespread observance, with the Amphitheater and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier there the principal mecca of the Nation on this day.

More than 22 national patriotic and veterans' organizations, in conformity with their usual custom, have cooperated in scheduling the majority of services and events, with a pretentious program at 12:45 o'clock at the Amphitheater and a gala parade in downtown Washington at 9 o'clock this morning as the outstanding attractions.

Two addresses will headline the amphitheater services. Brig. Gen. James A. Drain, Washington attorney and national commander of the American Legion in 1924-25 and Representative Royal C. Johnson, of South Dakota, will speak.

Samuel G. Mawson, department commander, Grand Army of the Republic, will call the gathering to order after a bugle call and selections by the Marine Band. He will introduce James G. Yaden, past department commander, Spanish-American War Veterans, and president of the Memorial Day Corporation, who will preside. Miss Jeannette E. McCaffrey will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner;" Percy Parker, color bearer of the Sons of Union Veterans, will present the colors, and invocation will be said by the Rev. Howard E. Snyder, department chaplain, American Legion.

The program also includes a reading of Gen. Logan's order establishing Memorial Day by Lee T. Turner, department commander, Disabled American Veterans of the World War; vocal solo, "Sleep, Soldier, Sleep," by Mrs. Elsie Jorss Reilley, president, Federal Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars; a reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by Harlan Wood, past department commander, American Legion; vocal numbers by Miss Ruby Smith Stahl, Gertrude Lyons and Dorothy Sherman Pierson; remarks by William L. Thomas, department commander, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and benediction by the Rev. V. C. Anderson, department chaplain, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The parade, scheduled to start promptly at 9 o'clock this morning, will assemble on Pennsylvania avenue between Seventh and Ninth streets northwest. It will swing along the Avenue to Fifteenth street, south of the Treasury, north on East Executive avenue to Pennsylvania avenue and west to Seventeenth street, then south to E street.

In order will be a mounted police escort, the Marine Band, Charles W. McCaffrey as chief marshal, the Grand Army of the Republic; its department commander, Samuel G. Mawson, and staff and its past department commanders.

Then follow the United Spanish War Veterans, its department commander and staff; Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, with its department commander, led by the organization's band and drum corps; the American Legion, with its department commander and staff; the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, with its department commander and staff; the National Indian War Veterans, the Indian War Veterans and the American Veterans of Hellenic Descent among other bodies.

Preceding the amphitheater services, numerous other events are planned by various groups in the cemetery. The Washington Chapter, American Institute of Architects, will hold brief services at 9:45 o'clock at the tomb of Maj. Peter Charles L'Enfant, designer of the City of Washington, with the speaker, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks. Immediately afterward, they will go to Congressional Cemetery for similar services at the grave of James Hoban, architect of the White House.

At 11:30 o'clock members of the Grand Army, Woman's Relief Corps, Daughters of Veterans, Ladies of the G. A. R. and all auxiliaries will meet in front of Arlington Mansion there and march to the Tomb of the Unknown Union Soldiers of the Civil War, where they will lay flowers in impressive ceremonies.

In the northeast section of the cemetery, reserved for Negro soldiers of the Civil War, services will be held at 11:30 o'clock by the Gen. Guy V. Henry Garrison, Army and Navy Union, with July McHenry Auxiliary, assisted by Spanish War Veterans.

Three Events at Noon.

Three events will take place at noon in the cemetery. At the Maine Mast honor will be paid the victims of this battleship by Admiral George Dewey Camp, United Spanish War Veterans. Commander P. J. Callan will deliver the address. An anchor will be laid by Commander Callan; a wreath will be placed for the Admiral George Dewey Auxiliary by Mrs. Ida Kimmerling, its president, and a wreath will be laid for the Lineal Society by its chief ruler, Mrs. Augusta W. Newland.

The American Women's Legion will hold services at the Argonne Cross, with an address by Dr. H. H. W. Sterrett, advance of the colors and remarks by Mrs. E. S. Bettelheim, jr., its president.

At the same hour, brief services will be held at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Department Commander William L. Thomas presiding. At 12:15 o'clock at the tomb services will be held by the American Legion, Department Commander B. C. MacNeil presiding, and at 12:30 o'clock services will be held there by the Disabled American Veterans, Department Commander Lee T. Turner presiding.

Because of road construction and traffic facilities the cemetery will receive automobiles only which bear a G. A. R. windshield sticker, obtainable in a limited number at headquarters of the participating organization. For these machines entrance will be through Fort Myer. The drill grounds of Fort Myer will be open as a parking space for other cars.

Cathedral to Be Scene.

Washington Cathedral will be the scene of several events during the morning, beginning at 9 o'clock when a delegation of the Admiral George Dewey Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, lays a wreath on the tomb of Admiral Dewey. At 10:30 o'clock the tomb of both Admiral Dewey and Mrs. Dewey will be decorated by a delegation from the Capt. Joseph B. Coghlan Chapter, Dewey Congressional Medal Men's Association, from Philadelphia.

A committee from the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Hamlin, will lay a wreath on the tomb of the wartime President there at 9:45 o'clock. Announcement was made that a military aid will represent President Hoover in placing a wreath on the tomb also.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will deliver a Memorial Day address in services to begin at the cathedral at 10 o'clock. They will be broadcast over a Columbia coast-to-coast network.

Haines Point Ceremonies.

Picturesque ceremonies will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at Hains Point by Navy and Marine Corps veterans to commemorate the deaths of their heroic comrades who gave their lives to the Nation. A large 'buddy" poppy anchor, made by disabled veterans, will be cast into the river by the Admiral Robert E. Peary Ship, No. 427, and the All Navy and Marine Corps Ship, both of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The program will include selections by a 20-piece unit of the Navy Band; invocation by Capt. Quincy K. Evans, Chaplain Corps, U. S. Navy, and an address by an unannounced speaker. Clarence Jackson, captain of the Peary Ship, will preside.

A program of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission will be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Co. at noon, with two speakers, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, associate director of the commission. Martha Atwood, soprano, will sing.

Georgetown University Law School will hold services in its law library at 10 o'clock this morning to honor 29 of its one-time members who died in service during the war. COURT BUILDING SITE IS ORDERED VACATED Few Occupants Are Given Extension in Order Effective July 1.

All occupants, with a few exceptions, of the portion of the Municipal Center area to be covered by the courts building have been ordered to vacate by July 1 so that razing may be started, Maj. H. L. Robb, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, announced yesterday.

About a score of business houses, boarding houses, cafes, and a Gospel mission are involved, as well as the Municipal Court Building. A few of the property holders who sold their holdings late have been granted an extension of time to find new locations.

Provision was made yesterday by the District Commissioners for a temporary home for the Municipal Court pending completion of the first unit of the Municipal Center in about three years. Upon recommendation of Maj. Robb they allotted $15,000 to the District Repair Shop for the purpose of making alterations in the Harper Building, 467 C street northwest, to prepare it for occupany by the court.

William A. Van Duzer, who will assume the duties of traffic director on July 1, and his staff also will occupy the same building until quarters are provided in the Ford Building. This will make unnecessary the move of the Naturalization Bureau from the Walker Building, now occupied by Police Headquarters, which threatened to involve the District officials in trouble with the Department of Labor.

While the District Repair Shop estimated it would require $24,000 to rehabilitate the Harper Building, Maj. Robb told the Commissioners that he felt confident the work could be done for $15,000. The building will be ready for occupancy about the middle of July.

The property ordered vacated involves a little more than half of the Municipal Center area east of John Marshall place and runs the full length of the site between D street and Pennsylvania avenue.

While some obstacles in the form of court aults are expected to develop, Maj. Robb said the razing would begin immediately after July 1, as it will have to be completed by September 1.

The American colony at Paris, with Ambassador Edge at its head, will pay tribute to both the French and American war dead in a brief ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier just before noon. Prior to that, at the American Procathedral of the Holy Trinity, the identical service held on Memorial Day of 1918, when the Germans threatened Paris and the city was under bombardment, will be reenacted. Simultaneously, solemn requiem high mass will be sung in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in the Avenue Hoche.

The District fire boat had gotten under way toward the naval station, but was signaled back when the slight nature of the fire was telephoned to its base. Outside of charring the dock timbers somewhat, no damage was done. A carelessly-thrown cigarette stub was hazarded as the cause of the fire.

DETECTIVES STAGE THREE LIQUOR RAIDS

at this place, the three moved leisurely over about a block to Ninth street near H northwest. Here they knocked on the door and walked in. They said they found three men and a small quantity of liquor in the front on the second floor, but in the rear discovered a veritable storehouse.

They took away about 60 cases of Canadian ale, between 40 and 50 pints of rye whisky and about 25 gallons of alcohol. In this place they also found cards and gambling equipment, they said. In a coat left in the place they discovered a .38 caliber pistol, fully loaded.

Man Accused of Possession.

The detectives said that much of the equipment in this place, including a radio, was the same as that found when a place two doors away was raided two days ago. They charged Edward C. Ford, 40, colored, of Four-and-one-half street southwest near A street, with possession of whisky. Ford, police say, admitted that the furnishings were the same as those found in the place previously raided. Ford was out on bond in connection with that raid, and a padlock injunction against the place was issued yesterday morning.

Several persons doing business in the neighborhood said that the enormous stock of liquor found in the place raided yesterday was moved from the place formerly raided in the glaring light of day. The moving started about 10 o'clock and was completed just a short time before the three detectives rapped on the door. In fact, Ford admitted, detectives say, that he had just opened at 2:30 o'clock and the raid occurred at 2:45.

Two men were held in connection with the Ninth street raid as United States witnesses. They gave their names as Harry Udelevitz, 29, of Waldorf, Md., and William Portner, 24, of Lanier place northwest near Seventeenth street.

Raid on New York Avenue.

The detectives closed the day's work at a place on New York avenue near Twelfth street northwest. Sergt. O'Dea walked up three flights and rapped on a heavy door. A slide was pulled back and he was told to wait for a moment. He waited and was admitted a little later.

The detectives found what looked like a complete bar in one of the rooms behind the heavy door, and found ginger ale, simple syrup, limes and other things, but they found nothing which resembled liquor, gin or alcohol. They held several persons found in the place, questioned them and released them.

A headquarters photographer was called and made a number of pictures of the interior of the place and then the heavy door, slotted with a peephole and reinforced with sheet-iron was dismantled and taken over to the First Precinct Station. It will probably join the odd collection of doors of various types which now clutters the vice squad headquarters.

A man, believed to have been the operator of a speakeasy at the New York avenue place, was commanded to dismantle the bar and lock the place.

Two Women Arrested.

The First Precinct radio squad brought what was claimed to be 11 pints of "red" liquor, 21 pints of gin, and 3½ gallons of alcohol to the station after they answered a "trouble" call at Tenth street northwest near I street.

They docketed a woman who gave her name as Mabel Fowler of that address on a charge of illegal possession. Another woman, who said she was Margaret Elizabeth Ross, 30 years old, of I street near Eighteenth street northwest was charged with drunk and disorderly, and a man giving his name as Charles Merrill Whalley, 21, of M street northwest near First, was charged with being drunk. A second man escaped, they reported.

Two Sixth Precinct policemen seized three jars of whisky and two rum-running suspects at the Municipal Fish Wharf at noon. In a scuffle with the officers the two men were injured. They were taken to Emergency Hospital. They gave their names as Stephen H. Davis, 40, of Alexandria, Va., and Edward Spees, of Seventh street southeast near G street.

Charges Hearsay, Says Shelby.

In connection with the raids, charges and countercharges made against the police department and particularly two headquarters detectives, Inspector William S. Shelby yesterday branded as hearsay and rumor the result of an investigation of these two men made by Richard Henshaw, a private operative.

Henshaw had turned the results of his investigation over to the Department of Justice, and in turn it was presented to Inspector Shelby.

"All of Henshaw's charges are based on rumor and hearsay," he declared. "There is not one instance in any of his charges where there is sufficient evidence to proceed against any officer."

Henshaw told Inspector Shelby that virtually all of the information he had about the police department and the alleged collusion between two headquarters detectives and gamblers in the First Precinct had been given him by a Washington newspaperman. He was unable to give the inspector one specific instance where a policeman had accepted graft.

Policemen Deny Accusations.

Inspector Shelby said he had found the names of several policemen running through the reports. They all denied the charges, he said.

The police official expects to complete his survey of the charges by the end of next week and will submit Henshaw's report to District Attorney Leo A. Rover for any action that official may see fit to take.

It was intimated that both Henshaw and the newspaperman will be summoned before the grand jury to tell the source of their information about police and their activities.

Montgomery, Ala., May 29 (A.P.).—The Alabama House of Representatives and the Senate today overrode the veto of Gov. B. M. Miller on a bill authorizing a tax of 25 per cent on sales of nonintoxicating malt extract in the city of Mobile.

Representative Sossoman, of Mobile, in asking the House to override the chief executive's veto said: "Our governor is one of the strongest prohibitionists in the State. He doesn't want near beer, yet he is lining up, unintentionally perhaps, with the bootleggers."

Debt Reconsideration Held Useless by Woods

Chicago, May 29 (A.P.).—W. O. Woods, Treasurer of the United States, expressed the opinion today that reconsideration of foreign debt settlements would be "worse than useless, as it will only breed ill-feeling."

"Public sentiment in America," Mr. Woods told the Executors Club, "would not permit reconsideration of the debt settlement agreement. The Americans will not agree to cancel and the debtors can not afford to repudiate."

DISTRICT FLAGLESS ON MEMORIAL DAY

Residents Urged to Send in Drawings for Banner in Post Contest.

Today, Memorial Day, every flag in the country is on display; every State or organization which boasts a flag will have it flying. The District, however, is not so fortunate as to have an emblem, but it is hoped that after the selection is made in the contest now being conducted by The Washington Post to secure a suitable design for such a flag, this lack of a banner will not exist.

After viewing the parades and various demonstrations today, the need for an appropriate emblem for the District will be more keenly felt than heretofore and it must be remembered that unless steps are taken to have Congress vote at the next session to legally adopt a flag for the city that next year when the celebrations are under way for the George Washington Bicentennial the city still will not be designated by a banner. Before congressional action can be taken a design must be originated and approved, which prompted The Post to undertake this contest.

Realizing the necessity, organizations throughout the city are expressing their desire to cooperate with The Post in its effort to have a flag officially adopted for Washington. At the meeting of the Kiwanis Club Thursday a resolution was adopted unanimously indorsing the project.

The rules for the contest are so few and the scope so large that it behooves everyone to enter. Drawings must be in black and white, accompanied by a written description of the color scheme or if you prefer, an additional drawing may be made to show the colors used. There is no limit to the number of designs any one contestant may submit. The contest will close next Saturday, June 6, and all suggestions must be addressed to the Flag Contest Editor of The Washington Post before that time. So hurry and get your ideas of what you think would make a pretty, artistic, and symbolic flag for the District of Columbia down on paper and mail them in.

Texas Guinan Gang Lands in France

Troupe Persuades Officers to Grant Night Ashore in Bunkhouse.

Havre, France, May 29 (A.P.).—Texas Guinan, sometimes called the "queen of night club hostesses," and her troupe of 30 Broadway girls, tonight were the unwilling guests of a hotel ordinarily used for third-class emigrants.

Yielding to the impassioned plea of Miss Guinan and her friends, the head of the intelligence service of the commissariat allowed the New York entertainer and her "gang" to come ashore to spend the night in the bunk house which the French line maintains.

Even Miss Guinan herself admitted there was nothing "Ritzy" about her present quarters when she landed from the liner Paris. However, the hostelry is clean and wholesome. Earlier, French authorities had refused to allow the troupe to land on the ground that their working contracts were not in order.

BETROTHED

PRINCESS BEATRICE.

Princess Beatrice Will Be Married

Daughter of Alfonso to Be Wed to Don Antonio of Orleans.

Fontainebleau, France, May 29 (A.P.).—The engagement of Princess Beatrice, daughter of Spain's exiled king, and Don Antonio Alvaro of Orleans, son of the king's cousin, was announced today by a representative of the former monarch.

They will be married in November or December of this year, but the announcement did not say whether the ceremony would be performed at Fontainebleau. The two young people—the princess is not yet 22 and Don Antonio is a year younger—were reported engaged last March, but the rumor was denied. They had spent much time together and their friends call it a real love match.

Don Antonio, like his father, Don Alfonso of Orleans, is an aviation enthusiast and flies his own airplane. The princess has interested herself in nursing and completed a course at a nursing school in Madrid before her father was overthrown.

New York, May 29 (A.P.).—Johannes Adler's $50,000 damage suit against Frieda Hempel, former Metropolitan star, was dismissed today without the hearing of defense testimony, by Supreme Court Justice Bernard Shientag, on the ground that the complainant's testimony was "vague and uncertain."

Adler, a former Berlin teacher of voice, claimed he restored Mme. Hempel's voice in Germany and the prima donna then induced him to come to this country, promising she would find him pupils. He came here, but was refused help by Mme. Hempel, he charges.

Plan Would End Rows in Church

Course of Action to Solve Sore Point Attacked Before Assembly.

Pittsburgh, May 29 (A.P.).—A plan of action intended to solve "the sorest point in the church today," the relations between the pastors and their congregations, was adopted today by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

Offered by Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, New York, as a means of placing responsibility for settling such questions, the plan was attacked by the Rev. W. A. Powell, Conshohocken, Pa., who contended that it would not solve the problem for the ministry, and the Rev. C. F. Vanhorn, Honeybrook, Pa., who charged that virtual domination of ministers by a hierarchy of bishops was threatened.

Montreat, N. C., May 29 (A.P.).—The problem of organic union with other churches of the Presbyterian faith held a prominent place in today's deliberations of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

END IS SEEN TODAY IN BOWLES-LAWSUIT

Banker Is Held to Blame for Woman's Stroke by Witnesses.

Suit of Mrs. Mae B. May, of West Falls Church, against B. Agee Bowles, vice president of the Potomac Savings Bank, of Georgetown, for $20,000 damages, will be concluded today in the Fairfax County, Va., Circuit Court before Judge Walter T. McCarthy and a jury of seven men.

The suit was filed last year. Mrs. May alleges that actions of Bowles in February, 1930, caused her to become partly paralyzed.

The trial started Thursday morning, but actual hearing of testimony was delayed pending settlement of legal questions among attorneys. Bowles' attorneys, Wilson M. Farr, Hugh Marsh and State Senator Frank L. Ball, demurred to the motion for judgment which was filed by Attorneys F. Shield McCandlish and Charles Pickett for Mrs. May. The demurrer was sustained by Judge McCarthy, but Mrs. May's counsel was given permission to amend the motion.

Husband Gives Testimony.

Mrs. May's husband, B. Frank May, testified yesterday to Bowles' alleged actions. He said the banker on February 21, 1930, forced his way into the home and, rushing into the living room, began shouting at Mrs. May, charging her with spreading criminally libelous statements concerning him and a Mrs. "Mills" which was of such nature to "put Mrs. May behind the bars."

May testified he warned Bowles that Mrs. May was in delicate health, at which Bowles is alleged to have said that Mrs. May could not hide behind her physical condition.

May told the court that he and his wife attempted to deny the accusations, but Bowles would not let them talk. He said he followed Bowles to the door and demanded that he retract his statements. A fewdays later, he said, Bowles again visited his home, repeated his charges and demanded that Mrs. May sign an affidavit that the statements which Mrs. May was accused of circulating were untrue. This she refused to do.

Mr. Mays testified that Helen Mills, daughter of Mrs. Mills, had come to his home and had told of alleged gifts to her mother.

Doctors Blame Shock for Stroke.

Following May on the stand, Dr. George Magee, of Washington, Mrs. May's doctor since 1921, explained the cause of Mrs. May's first breakdown and attributed the second stroke to the shock received by Bowles' accusations and threatening manner. Dr. John Smallwood, of Falls Church, also testified he had treated Mrs. May for paralysis following Bowles' visit and he believed that the stroke was caused from the nervous excitement incident to the visit.

Dr. D. Percy Hickling, of Washington, a nerve and mental specialist, gave similar testimony.

Mrs. May followed Dr. Hickling on the witness stand, telling practically the same story as her husband.

More than 30 witnesses have been summoned in the case, including several Washingtonians. William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives, was present yesterday as a character witness for Bowles, but was not able to testify as testimony for the plaintiff was not completed.

FOX

"ALWAYS GOODBYE." Fox picturization of a story by Kate McLaurin, continuity and dialogue by Lynn Starling, starring Elissa Landi, supported by Lewis S. Stone, Paul Cavanagh and John Garrick. Directed by William C. Menzies and Kenneth MacKenna. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

If the point were at all at issue, it would still be my contention that Elissa Landi is an exceedingly charming young actress. In a role a little more conventional—although it is unconventional enough, goodness knows—and considerably more sophisticated than the one in which she made her American screen debut opposite Charles Farrell in "Body and Soul," she here reveals a more mature and surer touch in most of what she does. If Miss Landi's method and her reading had to be catalogued, I should say that she occupied a sort of happy middle ground between the very deliberate Marlene Dietrich and the extremely effective Ruth Chatterton.

While no great shakes of a play, "Always Goodbye" is not so bad, either—barring a somewhat slow beginning and a slight spattering of banal dialogue. It derives its title from its pretty heroine's constant frustration—and leaves a haunting suggestion that it has been done before sometime as a silent picture, with a different cast, of course, and slightly different treatment. It may merely be that the formula it employs has not been permitted to survive the years unused.

Lila Banning is forever being faced with the necessity of bidding goodbye to friends, lovers and luxuries by a sheer perversity of fate. Finally, in desperation, she innocently agrees to participate in a shady enterprise which she at first believes to be merely a harmless lark—an exciting but innocuous adventure. Then she meets Graham, their host on the shores of Lake Como, whose fabulously valuable unmounted diamonds her predatory consort plans to steal to insure a rich old age—if Scotland Yard doesn't get him first. After that, there is a right smart bit of stealthy creeping up and down stairs, peering around pillars and trying the other door before Graham and Lila come to know that they were made for each other, and isn't the moon beautiful tonight?

Miss Landi does a very handsome job of being Lila and Lewis S. Stone is a Graham who at no time finds his ample abilities in the least taxed. Paul Cavanagh, who always reminds me of Basil Rathbone, is a smartly groomed and polished Reginald Something-or-other, international crook and confidence man, who almost gets away with it. Minor bits are properly done by John Garrick, Frederick Kerr, Herbert Bunston and Lumsden Hare.

The "Topical Tunes" stage revue—which might have been called anything else just as well—is a lively concoction in which Coscia & Verdi, whose clowning fails to obscure the excellence of their musicianship, romp away with first honors in "Music Glorified, Classified and Mortified." The Alexander Sisters contribute a variety of solo and unison dance numbers; Bob and Eula Burroff are expert in a modified adagio dance; Bob Carroll and Dorothy Thomas are a competent tenor and soprano; Niles Marsh scores in a female impersonation that is excessively masculine, by intention, and the Sunkist Beauties indulge in their customary setting-up exercises.

The Fox Movietone News, a Mickey Mouse cartoon comedy, "The Birthday Party;" orchestral overture, "The Student Prince," and Bob Hamilton's dandy musico-pictorial, "West of the Great Divide," complete a very elegant holiday program.

COLUMBIA

"STRANGERS MAY KISS." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the story by Ursula Parrott, adapted for the screen by John Meehan, starring Norma Shearer, supported by Robert Montgomery, Neil Hamilton, Marjorie Rambeau, Irene Rich and Hale Hamilton. Directed by George Fitzmaurice. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

That this charming bit of frothy comedy-drama should go into its second week is not surprising, for here are mixed all of the sprightly elements that make for engaging summer amusement. A story by Ursula Parrott, gorgeous and ever-changing settings and delightful acting by a superlative cast combine effectively, resulting in an evening's diversion that fully deserves the generous patronage that has been given it.

If "Strangers May Kiss" had no further claim to distinction than the cast that enacts it, the picture would still be entitled to a large measure of success. Norma Shearer, in another production cloaked essentially on the skeleton of "The Divorcee," continues her uninterrupted progress toward the rank of the screen's leading comedienne. No less sterling a delineation is contributed by Robert Montgomery, who, it seems to this reviewer, outshines the star in the convincing portrayal of character.

Neil Hamilton, playing opposite Miss Shearer, does the part of a journalistic foreign correspondent very acceptably. Among the others in the cast, all acquitting themselves creditably, are Marjorie Rambeau, Hale Hamilton, Irene Rich, Albert Conti and Jed Prouty.

Rounding out an enjoyable bill are "Let's Do Things," an amusing farce featuring ZaSu Pitts and Thelma Todd; a release of the Paramount Sound News and the usual organ interludes.

"WHITE SHOULDERS." Radio Pictures' filmization of Rex Beach's novel, "Recoil," featuring Jack Holt, Mary Astor and Ricardo Cortez, supported by Kitty Kelly and Sidney Toler. Directed by Melville Brown. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Arthur F. J. Reilly.

Ricardo Cortez has played the villain many times in his film career, but in "White Shoulders" he commits larceny outright, and that under the very noses of the producers and stars themselves. He runs (not walks) away with the picture, despite sterling performances by the captivating Mary Astor, the masterful Jack Holt and the clever Kitty Kelly and Sidney Toler.

Mr. Cortez, as Larry Marchmont, heart breaker and home wrecker, far excels anything he has ever done on the screen, in this reviewer's opinion. He dominates the picture, and when he can dominate any photoplay with Mary Astor in it, he's Old King Domino himself.

The reader may have surmised from the foregoing that Mr. Cortez and Miss Astor form two-thirds of the triangle. Mr. Holt is the remaining third. And now that the class in geometry is all attention, let's get on with the plot.

Mr. Holt plays the part of Gordon Kent, multimillionaire, back from the wilds of South American gold fields, where he has toiled for twenty years. He craves life, jazz, "white shoulders" and everything else that Broadway can offer to a man with the desire for pleasure and the wherewithal. And then he meets Norma Selbee (Miss Astor), a struggling chorus girl, who forgets how to struggle when Kent proposes marriage upon their first meeting. In fairness to Norma, it should be pointed out that she tried to make it clear to her wealthy admirer that she was not sure if she loved him, or if she ever could, but he asks her only to try, and above all, to "play square."

And she did play square for the first few months of their honeymoon tour around the world, until his caveman tactics palled on her and then up popped the devil himself, in the person of Marchmont—polished, cultured man of the world and an international confidence man to boot.

She listened to his pleadings and ran away with him, but Kent and his detective friend, played by Sidney Toler, trail them to Italy, where the outraged husband tells Norma that Marchmont is a crook and tells Marchmont that Norma is a bigamist, that she never was divorced from her first husband, Jim Selbee, a small-time actor.

Marchmont and Norma tell Kent that he can never separate them and he counters with the announcement that that is the very last thing he intends to do. On the contrary, he leaves them with the ultimatum that if they leave each other, he will send them both to prison. And what a revenge that turns out to be!

There is, quite frankly, nothing startlingly new about the plot, but the action never lags and Miss Astor is more beautiful than ever, especially in some of those Parisian creations which she knows so well how to wear. Mr. Holt turns in a satisfactory performance, and Miss Kelly, as Norma's chorus girl friend, who interceded with Kent and helps effect the reconciliation, also acquits herself creditably.

But Mr. Cortez, let it be emphasized again, stands out preeminently, especially in the plot scene with Selbee.

A newsreel and two short comedies complement the feature.

Loudoun Discusses Boy Scout Activity

Committee to Plan Work Named at Meeting in Leesburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., May 29.—Though not largely attended, much enthusiasm was manifested by those present at a meeting held last night in the courthouse at Leesburg in the interest of the Boy Scout movement in Loudoun County. W. L. Leitch, scout executive of the northern Virginia area, presided at the meeting which was called at the request of A. S. White, treasurer, who stated that the scout funds were running low.

A planning committee was named as follows: Miss Charlotte Noland, Foxcroft School; A. S. White, Leesburg, and M. N. Lyon, Purcellville. This committee will call another meeting some time next month, when guests will be invited to become fully acquainted with the scout situation in the county.

New Harpers Ferry Bridge Opening Set

1,400-Foot Rail Span Will Be Put in Service by B. & O. Monday.

Baltimore, Md., May 29 (A.P.).—Announcement that a new double-track bridge, 1,400 feet long, will be opened to rail traffic Monday at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., was made today by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Three States, West Virginia, Maryland and Virginia, and two rivers, the Potomac and Shenandoah, meet at Harpers Ferry, historic Civil War point. Work on the bridge was delayed by a fire which partially burned the structure early this year. The bridge and approaches cost $800,000, it was announced.

Three bridges now cross the Potomac at Harpers Ferry, the new structure, the bridge built in 1894 and now superceded, and the Boliman truss span of 1870, now used as a highway bridge. Another highway bridge crosses the Shenandoah there.

Man Held, Accused Of Having 5 Wives

Suspect Obtained Money and Disappeared, Say Postal Inspectors.

Memphis, Tenn., May 29 (A.P.).—A middle-aged man whose name was given as Calvin H. Burke, former theater man, was under arrest here today for questioning in connection with charges that within a year he married five women in several States. Postal inspectors said Burke obtained money or valuables from each of the women and disappeared.

They accused him of using the alias of Jim E. Howard to marry Mrs. E. J. Perryman, of Atlanta, last September 8. Two days later they said he deserted her after obtaining $2,200 in cash and $5,000 in jewelry.

On August 8, 1930, the inspectors charged, he married Mrs. Maud Hurdle, of Bluefield, W. Va., at Covington, Va., under the name of Eugene A. Dawson, and left her in Columbus, Ohio, eight days later after obtaining a sum of money from her.

Ritchie Presents Novel to Sailors

Richard Carvel Selected by Governor for Use of Men at Sea.

Annapolis, Md., May 29 (A.P.).—Although a governor may be required by the circumstances surrounding his office to live in a glass house where all the people of his State may see him, he is entitled to some reticences.

Gov. Ritchie didn't exactly say that when he was asked why he had selected "Richard Carvel" as the particular book he wished to present to the American Merchant Marine Library Association for use of sailors at sea, but he intimated as much.

The association received a new copy of that novel by Winston Churchill from the governor. The book was published in 1899, when the governor was some 32 years younger than he is now.

The governor merely said when he was asked the reason for his selection: "It's a story about Annapolis. It seemed a fitting book for me to present."

Steady gains by Studebaker continue...

During April, Studebaker registered more cars in Washington than any other car in its price class except one.

During the first 20 days of May, Studebaker again registered more cars in Washington than any other car in its price class except this same competitor.

But it is significant that where this leading competitor showed a decrease from the registrations of the same period in 1930 Studebaker showed very substantial gains.

Studebaker is not resting on its laurels. It is hard at work winning fresh ones in a market which is more highly competitive, more discriminating and more insistent on dollar value than ever before.

We view with pardonable pride a record of steady growth and we wish to express our appreciation to the people of Washington for their good will and friendly interest in our product and in our organization.

We view with pride the degree of excellence which has been achieved by our service department. Hard work, clear thinking and the helpful criticisms and suggestions of our owners have accomplished this fine result.

We are proud of the success which has rewarded a sound policy of conditioning and guaranteeing our traded cars.

Our "used car problem" has become less and less a "problem." Today, our stock of traded cars is lower than it has been in months. Friendly owners have been responsible for that.

And finally—we are proud to represent Studebaker in Washington—Studebaker with a tradition of almost 80 years of manufacturing leadership behind it—a Pioneer and a Pace-Maker in the automotive industry.

The thousands of Washington people who have invested in Studebaker cars have placed upon us a very definite responsibility for furnishing the high type of service which Studebaker deserves. It is to us a source of great satisfaction that we are not shirking that responsibility.

PROPOSAL ON BIRTH CONTROL IS OPPOSED

Presbyterian Assembly Not to Act on Report Favored by Dr. Sizoo.

Presbyterians generally are interested in the activities of the General Assembly, now meeting in Pittsburgh. Those in Washington have a peculiar interest in its program and activities because two of the chief Presbyterian ministers here, Dr. Albert J. McCartney and Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, are prominent in its undertakings.

Dr. McCartney, as president of the Commission on the National Presbyterian Church, will make his report to the General Assembly, and it is probable that it will be broadcast from coast to coast. This will give that enterprise national advertising and accentuate the interest that is now behind it.

Dr. Sizoo is a member of the Commission on Marriage and Divorce. As one of the liberal theologians of the church, he believes in the General Assembly taking some action on the much agitated matter of birth control. The commission was of his way of thinking, too, for it has presented to the General Assembly, in its report, printed in the Blue Book, the following recommendation on that subject:

Guidance Is Sought.

"Earnest Christian people are asking for the church's guidance on the subject of birth control. This subject demands attention today as never before. Economic conditions and a worthy standard of living clearly make it wrong to bring children into the world without adequate provision for their nurture and proper consideration for the health of the mother.

"The Christian conception of sex clothes the relationship between husband and wife with spiritual significance, sanctifying marriage as a divine institution. Moral control is the basic essential to a worthy experience of a marriage relation.

"In expressing its judgment on this subject, the church in no sense modifies its condemnation of sex relations outside of marriage.

"Two methods are possible in securing birth control. The first is continence. The second is the use of contraconceptives. When this method is adopted in seeking the worthy objectives stated above, it should only be in fidelity to the highest spiritual ideals of the Christian home."

Stern Objection to It.

This report seems to have met with such stern objection that the special commission has withdrawn it and will make no suggestion on the question for the action of the General Assembly.

It is interesting to learn that three women commissioners are sitting in this General Assembly, the first of their sex ever to sit in a Presbyterian legislative body in any part of the world.

Another fact of pregnant interest is that this General Assembly has struck and emphasized a note of evangelism, two full days being devoted to it. For some time, here and there devout Presbyterians have been praying for a revival of religion in this country. With 30,000,000 young people in the United States who are not in contact with any religious influence of any sort—this is based on the best available social statistics—the Presbyterians think this situation is one that calls for earnest and long-continuing prayer.

"The Great Awakening" in the eighteenth century was born in a Presbyterian laymen's prayer meeting in Hanover County, Va., where, no parson being available, these devout men met and prayed and read the Bible and sermonic literature to each other. Out of that prayer meeting came the celebrated Rev. Samuel Davies, whom Patrick Henry, no mean judge, said was "the most eloquent man I ever heard," and who was bold enough to rebuke George III of England for interrupting one of his sermons. "He preaches better than my bishops," spoke out the king; and Parson Davies spoke back to him: "Be silent in the House of the Lord!"

Awakening in 1857.

In 1857 another great awakening began in a Presbyterian prayer meeting in a little chapel in New York City, and it spread all over America, too. Here in Washington for a moment it stilled the tempest of sectional strife, and Protestant and Catholic, Jew and Gentile, members of all denominations met daily in the theaters and downtown churches for a season of prayer. This was wholly a laymen's movement, but it soon swept the ministers into its vortex and the entire church in America felt its impact.

Dr. Lewis Mudge, who has been elected moderator in recognition of his services as stated clerk, will have the unique distinction of holding the two highest offices in the church at the same time. His election as stated clerk for another five-year period comes up at this session. He was opposed by the conservative element for moderator; he will hardly have opposition for stated clerk.—D. R. B.

Large Congregations Attend Services Led by New Pastor.

Dr. H. H. Harmon, the acting minister of the National City Christian Church, is drawing large congregations at the handsome new church on Thomas Circle. In his own denomination he ranks as one of its outstanding preachers, scholarly, eloquent, scientific and religious. As a part of his program, the music of the Sunday services is arranged to coordinate with his sermons.

Dr. Harmon was recently called by the congregation of the National City Christian Church to fill the pulpit for a period of six months during the recuperation of Dr. Wilfley, the regular minister. Dr. Harmon's past experience in the pulpit, in religious organization work and as a divisional Y. M. C. A. secretary in France during the World War, have eminently qualified him for the position to which he has been called.

His ability to interpret the Bible and apply it to present day life problems have caused much favorable comment in the church world.

Dr. Sizoo to Speak at Picnic.

Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will be the principal speaker at the picnic luncheon to be given on the afternoon of June 5 by the Women's Guild of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church.

Forgetfulness

WE have turned the leaves of the calendar, one by one, until another Memorial, or Decoration Day, as it is now more generally called, has come.

Today, as a Nation, we pay tribute to the brave men who fought for liberty and justice that we might have security and peace. The wisdom and appropriateness of such a day of commemoration is well expressed in those words from Deuteronomy "Lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen."

Forgetfulness is a very common fault of this day and generation. Modern life, with its swift intensity, tends to make men forget the things that have been, and to think only of the things that are. The present, with its engrossing occupations, shuts out the past, and with a jolt are men stopped in the rush of life and asked to look back and think of the brave warriors who lived, and fought and bled and died!

It is human nature to enjoy what has been gained for us at the cost of a comrade's life, and not to think much about the comrade. The average individual accepts all the good that comes his way without much, if any, consideration of the source from whence it comes.

We see this tendency, both collectively and individually. As a nation we are both powerful and prosperous. We enjoy liberty and peace, and are prone to forget that these blessings were gained at the cost of life, and that men have fought, and bled and died that we might dwell in security and peace. Not only as a Nation, but as indivaduals, are we forgetful of what has gone before.

If such be the tendency of the human race to live only for the present, and to be forgetful of the past, do we not need these special days—when we are bidden to remember with deep gratitude those who have fought and bled and died in order that we might live in security and peace?

In paying this just and proper tribute, we come to a fuller and truer conception of what those noble men sacrificed for us, and a stronger inspiration to conquer, as they conquered, using as our motto those splendid words of Kipling:

"Lord God of Hosts be with us yet
Lest we forget, lest we forget!"

Convocation Set By Bible Institute

Dr. Shelton Will Speak at Graduation Exercises of School.

The American Home Bible Institute, 837 Allison street, which was founded in this city in 1918 by E. W. Collamore, has been slowly widening its sphere until now it has classes in even so remote a field as China.

June 8 is graduation day with this school, and it will hold its annual convocation that evening, following a banquet, at Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, Randolph street and New Hampshire avenue.

Dr. William A. Shelton, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, will be the speaker of the convocation. Dr. Shelton has long been a teacher of the Bible at Southern Methodist colleges and universities and is in hearty sympathy with the movement for a Bible school in the National Capital. Reservations for the banquet and convocation can be made by applying to the institute.

Evangelist to Tell Story of Life Anew

Mrs. Pennington's Revival Will Be Continued Indefinitely.

Mrs. Edith Mae Peninngton, the movie star evangelist, is continuing her evangelistic campaign at the Masonic Auditorium, under the auspices of the Full Gospel Tabernacle.

On last Friday night, when she told the story of her life, several hundred persons were turned away from the auditorium. There has been such a demand on her for a repetition of this story that she will give it at a later date during the revival.

Two hundred converts to the Christian religion are announced by the pastor, the Rev. Harry L. Collier, and the interest is so great that he advertises a continuance of the revival indefinitely. A divine healing service for the sick goes along with the preaching mission.

Your Fellow Man

And the greatest of these is love.

The old biblical quotation listing several virtues and closing with the above phrase was never truer than it is today.

Love of one's fellow creatures is the characteristic which separates the worth while from the worthless citizens today.

Love of the rest of mankind is evidenced in tolerance of their ideas and beliefs.

It shows in little day-by-day aids, extended as well as in the larger more public relationships of life.

Without it, the man becomes selfish, thinking of his own interests only and becoming a liability in his community life.

With it, he thinks of others' problems, gives them aid and encouragement, and is a real asset to the rest of the forward-looking right-thinking world.

Love of the world and sympathy for its problems along with intelligent thought for solving them is the logical result of loving one's fellow men.

You cannot cheat or defraud those you love. You cannot be selfish with them.

And in nearly every case you get back from others exactly what you give.

Cultivate a sympathy for others and their problems and love of your fellow man must follow.

The most civilizing influence in the world is love of one's fellow men.

THE ARMY OF THE AIR.

Today Washington welcomes the arrival of the First Division of the Army Air Corps for the culminating demonstration of its skill in formation flying. The two weeks spent in maneuvers have earned a triple tribute to the fliers and their commanding officers, to the efficient and all-important supply forces on the ground and to the plane builders for the reliability of the machines.

Two weeks of actual practice in all the intricacies of mimic warfare, large formations for defense and attack, take-offs and landings in which hundreds of planes were engaged afforded experience worth more than months of theoretical study. The most carefully prepared plans for aerial maneuvers on such a scale as those just being completed could not be adequately perfected until put to practical test. Now that has been done.

For the first time the entire combat strength of the Army Air Corps, with its supporting groups, has been mobilized. Its officers believed they could estimate what the air forces could do, but now they know. They know today what it can do, how long it will take to do it, and what is required to supply men and machines for the job. The maneuvers will establish the absolute value of the Army's present air force and permit exact estimates to be made for requirements in certain contingencies.

The most important purpose of the exercises has been to test and improve tactical theories relative to aerial defense of Atlantic Coast cities against enemy invasion. Today's concentration upon the Capital will be for the purpose of thwarting a mythical attack that threatens Washington. The maneuvers and parade over the Potomac at the Arlington Memorial Bridge will be an inspiring exhibition of flying ability that will be witnessed by thousands of Washingtonians and will be a fitting climax to a fortnight of difficult operations, carried out with precision and remarkable freedom from accidents. Washington salutes her superb Army fliers and recognizes their new responsibility. The skyline has become the first line of defense.

WHAT THE FILIPINOS WANT.

Leaders of the Philippine independence movement in Washington deny that there has been a change of sentiment on the part of the Filipino people, but reports from Manila indicate that they are not keeping very closely in touch with their people back home. The Manila Tribune has undertaken to express candidly the actual sentiments of the Filipino people, ungarnished by political oratory or patriotic hyperbole. The attitude of this paper reflects a general disposition to recognize the difficulties of independence.

"We would welcome," says the Tribune, "an independence in which we were guaranteed from outside aggression by the armed forces of the United States and by the prestige of its protection. If there were added certain tariff concessions permitting the entry of Philippine products to the United States' markets, then there would be no doubt of an economically and politically independent Filipino state."

As a matter of fact, these are about the only two marks of independence that the Philippines now lack. They are dependent upon the United States for military protection and for a market for their exports. The islands have their own government, and to a large extent manage their own affairs. When Filipino politicians clamor for complete independence what they are really asking for is a tariff wall against the exports of the islands and the opportunity of maintaining their own system of national defense. No wonder the people are changing their viewpoint!

That the Filipinos favor the kind of "independence" described by the Tribune can not be doubted. But why do they call it independence? Why have they not made it plain before that they merely wanted to be a favorite nephew of Uncle Sam, with free access to his bank account? "Our industry, our financial life and our habits of business," says the Manila paper, "are predicated upon the special privileges we enjoy as a dependency of the United States." Now that the Filipino people have begun to wake up to the fact that independence would destroy those privileges there has been a change of heart. The Tribune declares that it is "unthinkable that the United States would launch us on the troubled waters of the world to sink or swim on short notice."

If the delegates who are here in Washington to demand "immediate and complete independence" are unaware of this awakening to the realities of the situation, it might be well for them to journey back to Manila and learn what their own people are thinking and talking. Politicians who fail to keep up with public opinion in their own localities frequently find themselves without jobs.

SLAUGHTERED PATRIOTS.

Memorial Day is devoted to a special expression of gratitude to American citizens who have laid down their lives for their country. If there is any act that inspires universal admiration it is the act of dying in defense of country. The crowning infamy of man is to betray his country.

How dare a pacifist show his head on Memorial Day? If he were capable of connecting cause and consequence he would either hide himself on Memorial Day or renounce the creed that leads the way to cowardice and treason. Every patriot grave is a reproach to pacifism. Every memory of every sacrificed citizen is a reminder against the sin of slackness in national defense. Thousands of men of all wars are filling graves that were dug, not by enemy guns, but by American failure to make provision for security. Heroes made walls of their bodies because the Nation had failed to build walls of safety. The United States became and remains a Nation because of the invincibility of American flesh and blood, and not because of the foresight of the people and the Government in preparing defenses.

Pacifism slanders every soldier who lies dead. It declares that he fought in unholy war. That is a diabolical lie. The wars of the United States have been righteous, and were fought under the approving smile of Almighty God, who gave Americans victory because they fought for liberty—liberty for themselves and their children; liberty for the slave; liberty for Cuba; liberty for all nations on all seas. The demand that no preparation shall be made to safeguard the lives of patriots who fight America's cause is a demand that the graveyards shall be filled with slaughtered citizens, slain in unequal battle against a prepared enemy. It is a suicidal, murderous doctrine, which deserves the special execration of every relative of every soldier lying asleep in American or in foreign soil.

RED CROSS BIRTHPLACE.

The issuance of a special postage stamp to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the American Red Cross has brought forth more misinformation concerning the Red Cross and its founder than is usual, even in these days of careless writing. On March 19 the newspapers published under a Dansville, N. Y., date line a dispatch which described the bustling preparations for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the "coming into being" of Clara Barton Chapter, No. 1, in the Lutheran Church in Dansville "on August 7, 1881," Miss Barton having "come here thoroughly exhausted by her efforts in the Civil and Spanish-American Wars." This statement got by, in spite of the fact that the Spanish-American War was not fought until seventeen years later.

Next the Postoffice Department, in a release describing the Red Cross stamp, gave Dansville, N. Y., as the birthplace of Clara Barton. Miss Barton was born in Massachusetts. If this were not enough in the way of blunders, a local newspaper asserted on May 21, the day the new stamp was issued, that "fifty years ago this day, on May 21, 1881, at the home of Clara Barton in the neighboring Glen Echo, a meeting of citizens was held for the purpose of organizing an American branch of the International Red Cross Society."

The inaccuracy of this statement is manifest to any one of the Society of Oldest Inhabitants, who will readily recall that the house occupied by Clara Barton on the Conduit road at Glen Echo was built and owned by the Baltzeys, who established Glen Echo after fire had destroyed the "Chautauqua" there. That was about the year 1885, or later, and certainly not until five years after Clara Barton Chapter, No. 1, was organized at Dansville.

Livingston County, N. Y., not Montgomery County, Md., was the birthplace of the American Red Cross.

MORE FIREBUGS.

An interesting sidelight upon the depression was brought out at the annual meeting of the National Board of Fire Underwriters in New York. Fire losses throughout the country increased by $40,293,358 in 1930, in spite of the general decline in values during that year. Property destroyed by fire reached the appalling total of nearly $500,000,000, amounting to $4.07 per capita.

Insurance experts attribute some of the increase to the drought. Extremely dry weather doubtless aggravated fire hazards and made the fighting of fires in many communities more difficult. But a more sinister cause is also apparent. More than 3,780 cases of alleged arson or incendiarism were investigated, an increase of over 50 per cent for the year. In connection with these crimes 1,311 persons were arrested, as contrasted with 802 arrests for this cause in 1929.

Considerable progress has been made in fighting fires and in preventing spontaneous combustion. Nation-wide campaigns have emphasized to the people the necessity for extreme caution in using fire or combustibles. Since 1926 the annual fire loss has been substantially reduced. But now a new element of destruction has become formidable. Individuals in increasing numbers are burning their establishments to recover insurance. This factor coupled with the heavier losses resulting from the drought brought a demand for higher fire insurance rates from the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

The next campaign on safety from fire had better include measures against firebugs.

SLAVE-MADE GOODS.

Protests of the Daughters of the American Revolution against the display of Soviet candy in the windows of local shops brings the problem of communistic dumping home to the people of Washington. Candy is an item of importance in the Soviet export program. It enters into direct competition with Washington's own industry.

The question is not whether the Soviet product complies with the requirement of the pure food act, as one vendor implies. It is a question whether the American people will patronize an industry built up on the exploitation of labor. The workmen who make this and all other Soviet products are virtually slaves of the Communist regime. They are paid a pittance and live in squalor while the Soviet political machine reaps the benefits of their labor.

The United States does not permit its workingmen to compete with domestic penal labor. Why should American workingmen be forced to compete with foreign convict and slave labor? The protection which the tariff law gives against this kind of discrimination is not yet effective. If the people want to protect their own standards they must draw a distinction between American and Soviet products.

In general campaigns against the use of slave-made Soviet goods are not effective, because most of our imports from Russia are raw materials. The consuming public buys very little lumber, coal, oil or manganese as it is shipped in from Soviet ports. But whether lumber or candy, it is an insult to every American to offer him slave-made goods, and the insult should be resented.

MEMORIAL TREES.

The Washington bicentennial in 1932 is to have a living memorial. Under the auspices of the American Tree Association a drive has been undertaken to dedicate 10,000,000 trees next year to the founder of the Nation. Individuals, schools, clubs and organizations of all kinds are cooperating in this work. At the top of the honor roll is President Hoover, who planted a bicentennial tree for the association in the White House grounds.

Among the active participants in school planting Ocean County, N. J., has become a model for the rest of the country. This county has planted bicentennial trees in every piece of school property. Lakewood alone set out 2,500 trees.

These plantings are registered on the national honor roll of the American Tree Association. This organization will gladly send advice and suggestions to any committee on planting the trees and will forward blanks for registration.

The D. A. R. is active in its support of the association and has requested its many chapters throughout the country to participate in the planting. The American Women's Clubs of the State of Washington are no less enterprising. They have developed the Washington memorial plot of 40,000 trees in their State. At Fort Francis E. Warren a memorial avenue three and one-half miles in length is now under way, and other military posts are considering plantings on a large scale.

A more beautiful memorial could not be devised for the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth. Most memorials require care to keep them from becoming tarnished or worn by age, but the bicentennial trees will grow more beautiful and appropriate as the years pass.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., May 29.—Decoration Day is our best solemn holiday which ought to be observed with impressive ceremony. No lapse or diminution should be permitted in the yearly devotion which the people pay to the memory of those who have served in our armed forces.

As the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic, who established Memorial Day, fade away there is danger that its observance will be obscured in other more recent events. The principle involved must not be obscured. The day is sacred to the memory of all the dead who wore our uniform, from the earliest Indian wars to the present hour. In honoring their memory we are not glorifying war. We are a peaceful nation; our efforts led in securing the world treaty renouncing war as a national policy. But we honor their memory that we may glorify citizenship.

They were the antithesis of selfish individualism, merging freedom and even chance of life in the common welfare of country. In danger choosing the course that really counts, they preserved their rights by discharging their duties. No nation can live which can not command that kind of service. No people worthy of such service will fail to do it reverence. CALVIN COOLIDGE.

ROSES FOR THE VETERAN

By JOHN T. HUDDLE.

The mothers on the byways have looks of yearning sadness,
And helmets by the stairways flood homes with memories;
A sense of loss on gay days subdues the note of gladness,
While winter with its gray days moans through the lonely trees.

And fathers on the May days pin on their scarlet poppies,
And gratitude on pay days reminds of others' loss;
Read "Christ in Flanders" Sundays and pass around their copies,
Recall their boys in old days before they faced the cross.

Plant roses by the highways for boys that manned the trenches,
Place stars along the skyways for aces of the clouds,
And maples on the boulevards which grief with tears bedrenches;
Let cedars in lone graveyards guard those our love enshrouds.

A wreath float on the sea wide which o'er their graves is mourning;
Put lilies by the bedside of boys with limp and scar;
And help them at the crossways where crowds rush by in scorning,
And open all the doorways from which marred limbs debar.

Forget-me-nots strew always along the veterans' marches,
And keep the tombs and memories of loyal heroes green;
So may the golden gateway, with glorious rainbow arches,
Bespan the veterans' roadway that leads to the Unseen.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

MEMORIAL DAY.

A litle patch of color on a lonely mound of green;
A little flag above him, very new and very clean,
And the Maytime breezes blowing through the grasses soft and sweet,
And the little children wondering why the drums so slowly beat.

They've been told there was a soldier, in the days before they came,
Who marched away to battle when the world was all aflame,
For they've heard us talk about him, and they've often heard us sigh,
But they have no understanding of the reason soldiers die.

Only those who've lived a war-time know its anguish and its pain,
And the anxious weeks of waiting and the tears that fall like rain.
Only those who've lost a soldier understand Memorial Day
And the bitter cost of freedom which the brave go forth to pay.

Now the children follow with us to the grave with pretty flowers,
And we try to teach them something of the memory that's ours.
But sometimes when they are older they may come to understand
'Twas for them he went to battle in a far-off foreign land.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise:

You are fast becoming a woman. And because you soon will be a woman, and will share the powers of your sex, I want you to realize what is in store for you.

In simple words, you have the world with a little red fence around it.

And that means you must accept the responsibility of keeping it right side up.

Your sex is in the saddle and wholly responsible for the way the horse goes.

It is a man's world yet, of course. Nature attended to that. But in this land of "sex equality" the man is merely a tool that does the work while a woman's hand does the guiding.

How it all came about doesn't matter. Say, if you will, that woman was eager to play with man's toys and man was chivalrous enough to permit it. No matter. The fact remains that in America, as nowhere else on earth, woman was given or seized or gradually assumed the right to rule and now does rule, by subtle means or boldly, with complete and unassailable authority.

Being the ruler, she makes man what he is.

Consider, now, the way of a man.

He never serves two masters.

If he is employed by a storekeeper whose prosperity depends on pleasing the public, he is wonderfully polite to the cash customers. The law he obeys is public opinion.

But when he is employed by a corporation that has a monopoly and therefore can prosper without pleasing the public, he recognizes no master except the corporation itself and oft-times tells the public to sit on a tack.

Or observe him as a soldier. He is far from home. He no longer need fear the opinion of the neighbors. There are no policemen near to remind him of civil laws. There are no ladies to be shocked by his conduct.

The result is that he forgets all laws of God and man and thinks only of military regulations. Whatever he can do without inviting court-martial, that he does with a clear conscience. He is naughty because the only law he now recognizes doesn't forbid naughtiness!

And that explains your responsibility.

American men, being ruled by women, feel free of personal responsibility to any other law—not wholly, but much more free than the old-timers who wore whiskers and were proud of their masculinity.

These moderns, having reconciled themselves to pleasing the ladies are much like a buck private who doesn't worry himself about the general's strategy.

So long as they please the ladies—their immediate bosses—they feel no dutiful urge to obey other authority.

They are like an obedient small boy who says to a meddlesome stranger: "Gwan! You ain't my boss."

They obey their wives and daughters. And there their responsibility ends.

Your sex, my dear, must play the role of destiny it has assumed. Your influence will make or break some good man. See to it that you head him in the right direction. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

For the Long Pull.

Cincinnatti Enquirer.

President Hoover again has found reason to be hopeful that business conditions are on the way to recovery, although the exact turn taken by discussions at the Cabinet meeting Tuesday was not disclosed. More business men and economists are inclined to agree with the President now than there were several months ago.

While the sudden collapse of the bull market proved the fallacy of economic charts as prognosticators of the future, these charts give a very definite picture of what already has happened. They show that on a national scale there has been some pick-up in employment above the expected seasonal rise. They also indicate that in January the national business was approximately 34 per cent below normal, and only about 30 per cent below normal in April, allowing for seasonal factors. This is a slight rise, it is true, but one that under circumstances of extreme depression would seem to mark a real upward movement.

Narcotic Politics.

Topeka Capital.

Politics thrives on mysteries, one of which now stirs Washington, where Clyde Reed, Henry Allen and the Vice President have joined forces—in behalf of the Government narcotic farm for parsons in this State. Politicians immediately conjure further meanings in the alignment. The Vice President might run for the Senate and Reed for governor on a get-together platform, which was so successful in 1928. But what would become of the former governor and Senator Allen? He might, of course, run for Vice President, and it would not be the first time his name has been prominent for that office.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Tax on Chain Stores Will Be Borne by Consumer—Higher Prices the Only Result.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Father of a family of seven, I desire to commend you for your article pointing out that tax on chain stores is no help to the people of a community. I think the New York congressman that announces that he intends to introduce a bill into Congress to tax the chain stores of the District of Columbia has the welfare of this community at heart, although no doubt he expects to get a lot of free publicity and possibly the patronage of some of the East Side small grocers for his action.

What would the average community do without the chain grocery and drug stores? We are buying goods in these chains cheaper than any independent grocer or druggist is selling them. Nine tenths of the families of the District, like other communities, patronize these chains, because they buy the best of goods at the minimum of prices. The chains are able to buy in vast quanities, and the saving is passed on to us. No doubt they do drive some of the smaller independent grocers out of business but is that fact sufficient to impose an added cost on the consumers of groceries and staples?

A common-sense view of the matter is that all grocery stores, regardless of whether they are chains or independents, ought to be taxed alike, because after all, if the chains are to be taxed heavier, the burden is going to be passed along to the consumer. No sensible man expects such a tax to drive business into the independent stores.

Down in Kentucky I notice that a law has been passed that puts a tax on the gross sales of chain stores, and in the case of one grocery concern it amounts to $429 a store. If this is allowed it can result in but one thing—higher prices for groceries.

HARRY HEDERATH.

Supreme Court Minority Discussed Secondary and Not Main Question in Citizenship Case.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I imagine you will at once think the question in the MacIntosh case is settled, so why discuss it? It is settled in the court, but not in public opinion. I anticipate a flood of protests from college faculties, peace societies and church circles. If my analysis is correct, both the majority and the minority opinions discussed a secondary question, "Should conscientious objectors be compelled to serve, whether native or naturalized?" and overlooked the primary and sole question in this case: "What constitutes a citizen?" The native takes no oath—he is born into the obligation. The alien, to be on equal footing, must swear to all the natural obligations of the native. Is this point of view worth considering? CITIZEN.

Waste of Washington Dumped Into the Potomac Without Treatment. Better System Should Be Installed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This association congratulates The Post upon its splendid editorial of May 27, "Keep Public Waters Clean." We are in thorough accord with everything you have said and hope you will keep on fighting for the elimination of municipal and industrial wastes from our public waters.

One of the greatest blots upon the fair map of the National Capital City is the fact that all of the municipal wastes are being dumped into the old Potomac without treatment, and we hope the time will soon come when these wastes will be eliminated so that the beautiful Potomac will again be what it was in Washington's day.

Traffic Problem Here as Viewed by a Chicagoan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am glad to see by Sunday's Post that the local traffic "experts" in Washington are finally on the track of solving the traffic problem, which it now seems isn't an automobile problem at all, since the trouble lies with the pedestrians. Some of them walk too slowly.

So the solution they have arrived at is for all pedestrians to be kept hopping like fleas and obliged to move, old or young, halt or lame, not slower than four feet a second.

This will be fine, and will free a lot more space for more dead cars to sit at the curb all day and all night.

And still you laugh at Chicago, where we have at least outgrown the quaint village idea that the chief purpose of streets is to use them for storage places for people too thrifty to hire a garage. We have abolished parking altogether in our downtown area. A CHICAGO VISITOR.

Is the Government Building Program Being Speeded Up?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The prosperity of Washington depends to a large extent upon the speed with which the Government building program is carried forward.

The President in December, 1930, stated that he wanted the War and Navy buildings expedited. Nothing so far has been accomplished, except the selection of the site in the Northwest section. Every man, woman and child in Washington is directly concerned now with the speed with which the Government building program is carried forward. Labor is directly affected.

The speeding up of the Government building program means money in circulation, means labor employed. Real estate turn-over means cash with which the people are able to make purchases; purchases mean prosperity.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Farewell Given To Schoelkopfs Leaving Spain

Secretary at Embassy in Madrid to Take up Duties Here.

WITH the departure from Madrid on Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schoelkopf Washington friends may extend welcome shortly to the former second secretary of the embassy in Madrid who has been transferred to Washington to take a post in the Department of State. Whether the Schoelkopfs will take advantage of a 30-day leave and travel abroad before coming to this country has not been revealed through any message to official headquarters here.

To wish them bon voyage the Ambassador to Spain and Mrs. Irwin B. Laughlin entertained at a farewell dinner one night last week.

Only last fall Mrs. Schoelkopf came over from Madrid to place her son, Walter, jr., in school, coming on to Washington to supervise plans on a house in Macomb street which was purchased a year ago with a view to making the Capital their permanent home at some happy time. The house is the old Duehay house in Cleveland Park adjoining Rock Creek Park and has been transformed by the use of fine carving and grillwork from Spain into one of the loveliest houses in town.

Apropos of houses comes the interesting announcement of the definite decision of the United States Government to purchase a suitable building in Madrid for the embassy and staff and to include commercial, naval and military attaches and consulate office.

The embassy now occupied by Ambassador Laughlin at 19 Almargo was secured by Ambassador Ogden H. Hammond and before the selection of that building Ambassador Willard and Ambassador Alexander P. Moore had the palace on the Castellano. For some time the Department of State has had under advisement the purchase of grounds and a building in Madrid suitable for the large demands of the staff there and at the present rate of exchange has been able to arrange a purchase to excellent advantage. Through the constant endeavor of the committees in charge, including Representative J. Charles Linthicum and Mr. Keith Merrill, of the State Department, the selection of sites abroad as embassy quarters is going forward gradually.

Of interest to the friends of foreign service is the election last Tuesday in Madrid of Mr. Charles A. Livengood, commercial attache, as president of the American Club, of which Ambassador Laughlin is honorary president. The other officers named for the year are Maj. Robert H. Fletcher, jr., military attache, vice president; Alex Drysdale, secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Hoover will receive members of the Women's National Press Club Wednesday, June 3, at 5 o'clock.

Lieut. and Mrs. John O. Huse entertained last evening at the dinner dance at the Shoreham Hotel.

Their guests included Lieut. and Mrs. Jeffery Netzel, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Charles G. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Cochran, of Stevenson, Md., and Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. N. L. Rawlings.

Col. and Mrs. S. C. Vestal entertained at dinner last evening at the Shoreham Hotel.

The guests included Gen. and Mrs. John W. Gulick, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Clifford C. Early, Maj. and Mrs. Louis Pendleton and Mrs. Pendleton's mother, Mrs. Charles Platt, of San Francisco; Maj. and Mrs. Hamilton E. Maguire, Maj. and Mrs. John W. McDonald, Capt. and Mrs. Frank J. McSherry and Capt. Hugh N. Herrick.

Large Gallery Sees Tennis at Chevy Chase

Leaders in Society Make Merry Box Parties During Match.

Tennis fans, young and old, flocked to the Chevy Chase Club yesterday for the second day of the Davis Cup matches, at which the Argentines again met defeat at the hands of Wood and Shields, of the American team.

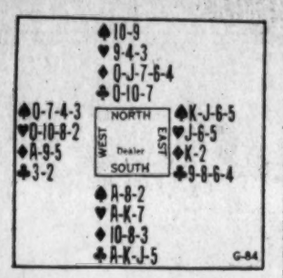
WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)



WITH the above hand at Auction Bridge, South would monopolize the bidding with one No Trump.

At Contract Bridge South's hand counts 19—4 for each Ace, 3 for each King, 1 for the Jack—the minimum requirement for bidding two No Trumps with only three suits stopped. (With four suits stopped, a count of 17 would suffice.) North's count of 7—2 for each Queen, 1 for the Jack, 1 for two Tens, and 1 for the length in Diamonds—was 1 more than enough for bidding three No Trumps.

When West started the play with the Duce of Hearts, South figured that nothing could be gained by ducking with the suit stopped twice, and so took the trick. He then ran the four established Clubs, East followed suit and West discarded two Spades.

After the Clubs, South led a Diamond; East won the first round with the King and led a Heart which West's Ten won; and South won the third Heart. West played low when Diamonds were led again, and South discovered that he was in North's hand for the very last time, with the Ace of diamonds still out against him. All he could win now was the Ace of Spades—being set one trick. Do you see how South could have made game?

THE CORRECT PLAY

When a hand in No Trump play contains both an established suit and one that needs establishing in order to make game, it is sometimes wise to run the established suit to force discards. This play is unwise, however, when it deprives one hand of needed entries. A solid suit, such as the Clubs in this hand, furnishes needed entries for dummy; so South should start Diamonds before Clubs. If East makes the logical Heart return after winning the first Diamond trick, South will lose only two Diamonds and two Hearts.

Dare Interprets the MODE

New York, May 29.

BATHING-SUIT chic you simply must have or you are not going to enjoy yourself a single speck at the beach, and what woman doesn't know that! But to just what extent she has to go in this chic, every woman doesn't know, and I will admit that it is somewhat of a puzzle in these bewildering days of literally hundreds of different bathing-suit and beach accessories.

Starting with the essential thing, we have, of course, the bathing-suit. This can be knit, and all in one piece with an attached skirt arrangement, or with a tuck-in blouse and shorts in two pieces like the men wear. Or it can be in cloth, and I must say that cloth bathing suits are becoming quite popular.

Then, of course, one must have bathing slippers and cap, and some sort of a wrap or else pyjamas to wear from the bathhouse or your home to the water, and afterward.

Those, we will say, are the essentials—now for the luxuries! For luxuries we have the beach sandals of all sorts which have nothing to do with bathing slippers, my dears, and which one wears on the sands and the boardwalk only, and not into the water. And newest of the new—we have those beach dresses or abbreviated beach pyjamas which, believe it or not, just come to an inch below if not an inch above my ladies pretty knees, which one slips on over the bathing suit!

Then we have beach bags which I wonder if, after all, I can call a luxury, since they are almost indispensable for beach comfort? These carry everything for a day at the beach that one doesn't wear, and what goes into them is another whole story all by itself which I must tell you about anon.

• • • •

Flannel—that's waterable, easily handled, and chic for bathing suits, is what we used for the bathing suits that we tell you how to make in this week's illustrated leaflet. You can use jersey, if you wish, and, of course, shantung for the pyjamas. But before you use anything at all you have to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to go about making the things you need for the beach! There are directions in this leaflet for: A bathing suit (consisting of shorts, and a pantie-blouse top.) A beach dress, a separate skirt for the shorts bathing suit, a three-piece beach pyjama suit. Better send for that leaflet right a-a-a-away.

• • • •

Just a half handful of our leaflets on making the latest bag creations left! So, quick now, get that stamped self-addressed envelope off to the Dare department of The Washington Post so you can be one of the lucky few to get a remaining leaflet!

• • • •

The new coats are reduced and abbreviated in many ways—besides having their collars subtracted and their sleeves abbreviated, they barely meet in the front except at the waistline. Here they may be held together by buttons on a chain passing the cuff links through button holes on each side of the front closing, or they may be tied together with ties of matching or contrasting material, or still again they may be worn with a sash or belt. And very often no attempt can be made to close them at all, because they miss meeting in the front by about six inches!

• • • •

The big Sunday Post tomorrow will have another of Dare's weekly fashion letters. You should look for it.

Au revoir!

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

"Mary Dover" means "Bitter Water." "Solomon Gregory" means "Peaceful Watchman."

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Bray" (also spelled "Braye") is generally found as an English name of Scandinavian origin. Since it is derived ultimately from the Old Norse "bra," its full significance is "he who lives at the brow of the hill." There are parishes called "Bray" in Berkshire and Devonshire, both of which have frequently given rise to the family name. The place-names have the same source as the family name. "Bray" sometimes occurs as a purely Irish name, although as such it has the same significance as the corresponding English form. The Hundred Rolls includes the names of Thomas de Bray, Aunsell de Bray, Henry de Bray and Gunfreda de Bray.

The family name "Downey" (also spelled "Downie") has come down to us from two main sources. It frequently stands for the French "Dauney" (also spelled "Daunay") which means "of the alder grove," and indicates an early place of residence. "Aunay," which is the basis of this name, is a fairly common place name in France. A former residence in one of those places has frequently given rise to the family name. Another source of "Downey" is the Scottish "Downie." The many Scottish places which are called "Downie" owe that name to the Celtic "dun," meaning "hill," and the diminutive ending "-ie." It may therefore be translated "the little hill."

The family name "Downer" is based on the Old English and Celtic "dun" meaning "the hill," and therefore means "the one who lives on or near the hill." It does not seem to occur in the oldest English records. A Canterbury church register of the year 1683 records the marriage of William Downer and Barbara Greene.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF May 30 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 2:05 p. m. to 3:35 p. m. and from 7:15 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger hours are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

There is nothing in the planetary aspects of May 30 to cause worry or anxiety. On the other hand, there is nothing to provoke elation or rejoicing; a day is foretold without any special happenings. After sunset conditions are favorable for those who are in love—or think they are.

A child born on this May 30 will be sincere and honest. As it grows into adulthood, it will have strong convictions, and will not fail to give utterance to them. Its moderate success is assured. It will always have a deep attachment for home and a great love for its kith and kin.

Born on May 30, you possess a very vivid imagination, and are kind and impressional and enthusiastic. You are never content to exist, you must live. You are a hard worker, and have a great contempt for those who go through life without having some vital interest. You are very much in earnest and take things seriously, although ever ready to appreciate the humor of a difficult situation. You are a student of human nature, and your sympathies—active and generous—are always with the under dog.

Your memory is excellent; your sense of justice is pronounced. Some of your ideas are extreme, but the years will mellow them, although they will never make of you a conservative or a reactionary. You are more a disciple of uprooting evil than of regulating it. You would rather go without bread altogether than be satisfied with "half a loaf." If a woman, you are extremely emotional and disposed to clothe the object of your affection with virtues which he does not, and never can, possess. You both idolize and idealize, and herein lies a great danger. You are intelligent, attracted by the psychic and occult, and extremely fond of your home and it comforts.

Successful people born May 30:

Edward L. Burlingame, journalist.
Frederick D. Grant, son of President Grant, Minister to Austria.
Mrs. Spencer Trask, "Katrina Trask," author.
Rupert Blue, sanitarian.
Charles Bancroft Dillingham, theatrical manager.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

THESE COEDS!

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: It started last fall. The man who is here in school started running around with this very good friend of mine. Ever since then they have been going out together very steadily. He hasn't taken any one else out except on a few occasions. Things went beautifully until Christmas time, except that in small quarrels she would always be the one to give in. After Christmas he went to see her one night and vowed and declared his devotion in no uncertain terms. From that night on she didn't hear from him for almost two weeks. Then one night she went out with a friend of his (the man in question could very easily have asked the girl himself, so it wasn't a case of cutting his time) and didn't expect to see the man of her heart. It seems after he had thought the thing over he decided he was sorry he hadn't asked her and decided to be one of the party. He didn't dance with any one else, and when he wasn't dancing with her he was sitting on the side lines just staring. The next day there was a class tea dance at the school and she was not asked. He took some one else. Now this tea dance was not gotten up on the spur of the moment; it had been decided upon weeks before. She never made any mention of his not taking her when she saw him again and then a big prom came along and again he didn't take her, but two or three days before the prom he called and asked her to attend a dinner party with him for the next night, which she accepted, but in the meantime she found out that he was taking another girl to the prom. Well, the night of the dinner party came and she went; she was very sweet to him, never mentioned the prom. Things went fairly smoothly after that, and then for no reason at all, out of a perfectly clear sky he stopped calling her for four weeks and took the other girl out. Well, after four weeks, she sent a message to him and asked him to call on her, which he did. He came out and they talked things over and he said he was very sorry and that she was not responsible for his silence, and again told her that he loved her very dearly.

Well to make a long story short, the principal prom of the year is next week-end, and he had intimated that he was going to ask this friend of mine, never said anything definite but has implied as much, but he has not done so, and she is in an awful storm now about things. She doesn't know what to do, whether to give in again and send him a message or to sit tight and see what happens. I honestly don't believe that she wants to make up because of this prom next week-end, I really think that she is in love with the boy. The thing that infuriates me so is that she has given in to him so much, let him walk over her in a nice way and always takes the blame. What is your opinion? MARGARET.

If the man were in love with your friend, he would not have taken the other girl promming. You surely know that. Therefore your friend in sending for him, is pursuing him, and cheapening herself beyond all reason.

One of the things that should be included in the courses at these co-ed institutions is the art of being casual. Why any young woman should proceed to run a temperature over a few casual attentions and accept slights rather than exert a little will power and dignity is a mystery. And it is a subject far more important to her future peace of mind than ancient history.

Tell your friend that when a man loves a woman, she comes first—and not as an afterthought.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me if I must rinse out a new lily pool before planting I will have running water in the pool, therefore I can easily do this a few times if you think it is necessary. THOMAS T. R.

It will be best to take this precaution. Sometimes the fresh cement is hard on the plants.

Is it necessary to remove grass clippings from my lawn? It is such hard work on a hot day to rake the entire plot. MRS. G. H. W.

No. It is really better to permit them to decompose. Rotted grass clippings are nature's best humus.

Please tell me why a rosebush that bloomed last year has no buds on it this year. A READER.

Likely because it requires food. Better give it liquid manure at this time and repeat the application, fifteen days apart, until after the 10th of July. Also cultivate the soil about its roots.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed twig of evergreen. MRS. C. W.

The specimen was a branch of retinespora. I can not identify the species.

Please tell me something about tuberoses. Do they require sun and water and a rich soil? MRS. V. F. C.

Tuberoses require a rich but rather light soil with plenty of drainage. They must, in order to produce full-flowered spikes, be in sun from 9 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon. I know of no other border plant so fond of sun.

My gladiolus bulbs seem to be unusually dry and shriveled. The ones planted two weeks ago were in better condition. What do you suggest? My florist tells me to sprinkle them with water or even soak them for a few hours in water. Do you approve of this plan? I shall now plant all I have left, which should have been done three weeks ago. HELEN B. K.

Soak them overnight and then get them into the ground as soon as possible.

My althea is in bud, but covered with caterpillars. What shall I do? Would spraying with coated lead arsenate be apt to kill the caterpillars? MISS NANCY R. W.

Try spraying them with this material, though the usual formula calls for lead arsenate, 5 ounces; water, 5 gallons.

I have a peach tree with curled leaves. Do you know of any cure or remedy for this condition? CHARLEY G. T.

A copper sulphate solution of 2 to 3 pounds in 50 gallons of water is effective in controlling peach leaf curl. This should only be applied in the dormant season before the trees are in leaf. This preparation has no insecticidal value.

Please tell me what fertilizer to use to increase the size and number of the blossoms on my geraniums. MRS. TONY F. D.

Geraniums do best in a soil which is only fairly rich and when once planted should be given no further fertilizer. They must be in strong sun and do not require a great deal of water.

Please tell me how to start geraniums. NELL K.

Geraniums are best started from cuttings. Make slips 2½ inches long. Remove three-fourths of the foliage before placing the ends of the cuttings in the sand.

Please give me some information about planting dahlias. I refer to the time. MRS. WILLIAM G. T.

Plant the tubers any time between May 15 and July 4. Most growers prefer late planting. I think it is well to make several plantings, two weeks apart.

This year, due, I suppose, to the prolonged dry spells we experienced last season, my grass is in miserable condition. Would you suggest sowing seed at this time, and can I apply bone meal in the spring or must this food only be given in the fall? MISS PEGGY S.

Reseed and fertilize at once.

Will you please tell me the name of the plant from which the inclosed leaf was taken? It is several feet tall. MRS. NORA B.

Am sorry, but leaf reached my desk in the form of powder, so that it was impossible to identify it.

Will hibiscus bloom from seed sown in the spring? MARY B. E.

They will produce blooms from seed sown in the spring if it is sown early enough.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

MEMORIAL DAY will be observed in numerous broadcasts throughout the Nation today. National leaders will be heard in eulogies at famous shrines, an international greeting will come from Japan, and studios will be given over to special programs.

President Hoover will deliver a Memorial Day address at Valley Forge, Pa., to be carried over national networks. The exercises were arranged by various patriotic societies to commemorate America's dead, in the Revolutionary, Civil, Spanish and World Wars.

Japan will join with America in observing Memorial Day when Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes and Viscount Kentaro Kaneko, speaking from Tokyo are heard here. This program will be the second within a month presented from Tokyo, and recalls the words of Gen. James G. Harboard, who said: "The towers of international broadcasting stations will loosen the tongues that were tied at the Tower of Babel. That the pen is mightier than the sword, in its twentieth century version, reads, that the microphone is mightier than the machine gun."

The program will be made up of a five-minute greeting by Ambassador Forbes, a ten-minute talk by Viscount Kaneko, the American national anthem, native music and military airs played by a Japanese band from Tokyo, music and Japanese anthem played by an American band from San Francisco.

SPECIAL Memorial Day services will be broadcast from Washington Cathedral over Columbia's coast-to-coast network this morning (WMAL, 10 a. m.). The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will deliver a commemorative address. The service will be conducted in Bethlehem Chapel, last resting place of Woodrow Wilson, Admiral George Dewey and other illustrious Americans. Prayers in memory of the heroic dead of the country will be read. The Washington Cathedral Choir of men and boys will sing.

Exercises under the auspices of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission will be broadcast (WRC, 12 noon). Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Representative Sol Bloom, associate director of the Bicentennial Commission, will be the principal speakers.

A program made up of numbers requested by the boys in Walter Reed Hospital will be broadcast from WOL this morning. Fred East, barytone, will entertain them for three-quarters of an hour.

G. A. R. ceremonies at Arlington Cemetary will be broadcast by WRC and WJSV. Speakers include Gen. James A. Drain and Representative Royal Johnson, rereading of Lincoln's Gettsburg address, and music by the U. S. Marine Band.

Of the forty cars which qualify to start in the 500-mile motor sweepstakes at Indianapolis today, only the more rugged ones will be roaring on to the finish when Graham McNamee goes on the air to report the last laps of the stirring contest. It will require almost five hours to determine the winner, but only the last hour will be broadcast (WRC, 3:15 p. m.). This is McNamee's fourth successive year as announcer from the speedway.

CBS will interrupt Ted Husing's account of the athletic meet at Franklin Field, Philadelphia (WMAL, 3:20 p. m.), to broadcast an afterdinner speech by George Bernard Shaw. The dinner commemorates the five-hundredth anniversary of the martyrdom of Joan of Arc.

The Black and Gold Room Orchestra, directed by Ludwig Laurier, will play "The Unknown Soldier," a lament fresh from the pen of William H. Woodin, a business man-composer, today (WRC, 5:15 p. m.).

The true story of Capt. Kidd will be told by Charles B. Driscoll in his "Buried Gold" series of buccaneer tales tonight (WJZ, 9:45 p. m.).

DRAMA in a telephone dugout behind the German lines during the World War will be heard tonight (WJZ, 10:15 p. m.) when an adaption of "Brigade Exchange" is broadcast. The characters are the noncommissioned officer of a telephone exchange and his five operators, revealed in the grim humor and horror of trench life.

The Nit Wits are coming back to the air. Bradford Browne and his deranged troup will return on Monday, June 22.

"We have refused to yield to popular demand that we stay off the air," Browne said in announcing the big news.

SNOOP and Peep, the phony detectives, are the champion users of sound effects. In a recent broadcast they employed a bulb horn, train whistle, bell plate, tin pan, miniature railroad locomotive, wire beater, chain windlass, cow bell, wood block and a small gasoline motor.

Mrs. Rhodes Quits Playground Work

Retires After 15 Years as Director; Is Presented With Gifts.

Terminating fifteen years' service as director of playgrounds, Mrs. Susie Root Rhodes retired yesterday with the good wishes of her colleagues and hundreds of playground patrons throughout the city. The District Commissioners accepted her resignation early this month.

Her associates presented a wrist watch, set with jewels, to her, while the Barry Farms Playground gave her a traveling bag.

Under Mrs. Rhodes' supervision the Playgrounds Department has expanded from 11 to more than 30 playgrounds.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Ray Sermathy

THE DIE IS CAST

THE ANCIENT ROMANS WERE INVETERATE DICE PLAYERS, AND ONE OF THE RULES OF THE GAME WAS THAT ONCE A DIE WAS CAST THERE WAS NO CALLING IT BACK. PERHAPS THE MOST FAMOUS APPLICATION OF THE EXPRESSION WAS DURING CAESAR'S MARCH ON ROME. WHEN HE CROSSED THE RUBICON, HE CRIED, "THE DIE IS CAST"!

HOW NUGGET ORIGINATED

THE OLD PERSIANS EXCHANGED MERCHANDISE FOR OTHER MERCHANDISE AS FREQUENTLY AS THEY SOLD FOR MONEY. WHEN THEY SPOKE OF A MONETARY EXCHANGE THEY USED THE TERM "MUGUD" WHICH MEANT READY MONEY AND EVENTUALLY "NUGGET."

THIN AS BANBURY CHEESE

THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF BANBURY WAS NOTED DURING SEVERAL GENERATIONS, FOR THE THIN RICH CHEESE WHICH WAS MADE THERE. MODERN EXCUSES ARE LIKENED TO THIS CHEESE—SO THIN YOU CAN SEE THROUGH THEM.

MONDAY—"Beastly Drunk;" Belling the Cat; "Keep Your Weather Eye Open."

If you have other ideas as to HOW IT BEGAN, write to Russ Murphy, care of The Washington Post. If you want to see how some other particular custom or saying began, let Russ Murphy know and his answer will be illustrated in this series.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

AS IT WAS.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., recently celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. The Evening Dispatch story of conditions as they were in that city does not differ in essentials from the situation that was general in the upper Mississippi Valley in that era. "The great bane of the town was ague, and the worst form of it was what was known as 'dumb ague.' There was the barrel to catch the soft rain water, filled with wigglers that soon developed into mosquitos.

"The sewer system consisted of ditches on both sides of the street, in which the kids could wade and catch bullfrogs and minnies. Lake Michigan was all right to look at or ride on, but to be used as something to bathe in was scarcely thought of except by some boys, and for them bathing suits were an unknown quantity. It was not considered proper for a woman to go in bathing. The Saturday evening tub in the kitchen was reserved for that formality.

"The treatment of the ague was whisky and quinine, and the cost of the former, about $2 a gallon, made it the more popular remedy. At least, that was the excuse that was sometimes given. The method of treatment was about as follows: You first took a bath, and then got in between sheets that had been soaked in cold water. Then quilts and blankets were piled on and these were topped by a buffalo robe. Meanwhile, the patient was doped with whisky, quinine, boneset or quassia tea, followed with compound cathartic pills. Later, a rubdown was given and the patient was transferred to a dry bed. If the sheets turned green then the 'pizen' had been soaked out of the system. The patient either got better or died, depending largely upon whether the cure worked or not."

Malaria was everywhere in the Upper Mississippi Valley from the settlement of the country up to about 50 years ago. It may have been that the disease was imported, but once it got in there were plenty of mosquitos of the right kind to spread it, and plenty of standing water for these mosquitoes to breed in.

All that was needed was some people with ague to infect the mosquitoes. After they became infected there were plenty of people to pass it on to; and those people knew little enough about how to protect themselves against the disease, or how to cure it once they got it. The method of cure they used was crude, uncomfortable and highly inefficient. Whether they got well or died was dependent more on how badly they were infected. Whether the cure worked or not had but little to do with the recovery. They threw the disease off by main strength and awkwardness. Finally, the price of quinine went down and the price of whisky up, and the combination was broken. Then treatment became more effective.

Meanwhile, the underbrush was being cleared, the land was being drained. All of this worked together to rid the people of malaria. Later, those surface sewer ditches were abolished. Good water supplies were established and typhoid followed malaria into the discard.

MANY CAUSES PROBABLE.

H. C. writes: What is bad circulation in the legs? What is the relief or cure for it?

REPLY.

This state is called cold feet and also poor circulation. It has many causes. In diabetes and some other diseases it is due to sclerosis of the blood vessels. In some other diseases it is due to spasm of the blood vessel walls. In ordinary poor circulation it is due to what is called vasomotor instability.

In mild cases it can be cured by cold and hot foot baths, hot paraffin, massage and light therapy.

WOODLAND BEACH OFFERS COOL TRIP

Capital Residents Urged to Make Holiday Visit to Post Community.

Despite his prediction of showers, the weather man, promises to be kind to Capital residents over the Memorial Day holiday week-end. The showers, he says, will last only long enough to cool things off and make it pleasant for those who wish to enjoy outings and motor trips.

Showers of such nature will not interfere with the festivities at Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's new summer home development site, for any one visiting Woodland Beach can take shelter in the clubhouse on the grounds until the shower has ceased.

Of course, every one likes sunshine, but Woodland Beach, immediately after a brisk shower, is a place of beauty and those who take the time to motor there today or tomorrow may find a scene surpassing even their fondest expectations.

Combine business and pleasure over the holiday by taking a trip to Woodland Beach, examining its many admirable qualities as a site for a summer home for yourself and your friends and then make a purchase of a lot in a community that promises to become an outstanding attraction along the South River in Maryland.

The best part of becoming a lot owner at Woodland Beach is that the purchase will not "break" you or strain your finances over a long period of time. Lots at Woodland Beach are $93, no more, no less. All you have to do to make your selection is to pay $9 down with a subscription to The Washington Post. The rest may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50 each. Easier terms will be hard to find and a more pleasant site for a summer home an even more difficult task.

Bathing, boating, fishing, shady trees and plenty of water front. That should be an appeal which few can resist.

—Pulitzer Prize Novel—

By MARGARET AYER BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

Jane follows her impulsive decision to marry Stephen Carver after hearing from Andre Duror that he will not return to see her that year. There is a military wedding for Jane and Stephen, attended by all the Carver family from Boston. There is a brief honeymoon of one week, then Stephen goes to war. By the time that Andre's second letter comes, telling Jane he will not come back to see her, since she is now married, it is three months later, the war is over, Stephen is a hero and returning home and Jane knows that she is going to have a baby.

PART III.

JIMMY—CHAPTER I

JANE CARVER opened the screened door that led from the living-room of her father-in-law's house at Gull Rocks, Seaconsit, to the verandah that commanded a view of the sea. She closed it quietly behind her and walked quickly over to the wooden steps that led down to the grassy terrace.

Fifteen years of matrimony had not impaired the lightness of Jane's step. Her fine straight hair was still untouched with gray, her waist was still slender, and her eyes were still bright. They gleamed, now, with a spark of irritation. Had Mrs. Ward and Isabel been present they would have recognized, immediately, the storm signal. "Tantrum" would have been their verdict.

If she had stayed in that living-room another minute, Jane knew she would have been rude to her mother-in-law. And Jane had never been that. Not really. Not once in fifteen years.

It was terrible, thought Jane, it was really terrible, what it did to her to listen to Stephen's family talk about Stephen. And incomprehensible. For Jane loved Stephen. They were very happy together. Yet, somehow, when his mother—Oh, well, there was no use going into it.

Sailboat Races Under Way.

A sunshot August haze hung over the familiar view of lawn and beach and bay. The Seaconsit harbor was filled with flitting sails. The Saturday afternoon race would begin in half an hour. Her father-in-law's launch was riding at anchor, ready to follow the contestants around the course, and Jane could see her father-in-law, dapper in blue coat and white flannels, standing at the end of the pier, binoculars in hand. He was watching Alden and Silly, rounding the first flag in their catboat, already maneuvering for position, half an hour ahead of the starting gun.

Jane picked up her worsted and began to knit. She was making a blue sweater for her 14-year-old daughter. The sweater would be becomingly to Cicily. When this one was finished she would knit another, for Jenny, and a third for little Steve, much as he disliked being dressed to match his sister. All three children were very blond. Like the Carvers, thought Jane, with a little sigh.

It was pleasant to be alone. At Gull Rocks, Jane perversely reflected, one seldom was. The Carvers, as a family, were animated by the clan spirit. They did things, if at all, in concert. They even did nothing in concert. They abhorred solitude as nature does a vacuum.

Twelve Summers Spent There.

Jane had spent July and August at Gull Rocks, Seaconsit, every summer but two since the birth of her first baby. Twelve Julys and twelve Augusts at Gull Rocks, Seaconsit! When Jane put it like that she really felt that she had joined the Holy Fellowship of Martyrs. Stephen didn't know what it was like—how could he, being born a Carver?—marooned alone with the children at Gull Rocks summer after summer, while he held down his job at the bank at home and only came on to join them for a three weeks' holiday. Stephen wanted his children brought up with some idea of the New England tradition. That was only natural, of course, still——

However, Stephen was coming, that very afternoon, on the 6 o'clock train, for the three weeks' holiday. Jane was very glad of that. Stephen's coming would make everything much better. Gull Rocks was almost fun when Stephen was there. They would swim with the children, and Stephen would teach little Steve to sail and——

Jane heard the screened door open behind her and the brisk, decided step of Aunt Marie crossing the piazza. She did not raise her head from her knitting.

"I've come out to keep you company," said Aunt Marie pleasantly.

Continues Counting Her Stitches.

Jane made no comment. She was counting stitches again, softly, under her breath. She heard the Nantucket hammock at the corner of the verandah creak faintly under her aunt's substantial weight.

"Have you read the August 'Atlantic'?" asked Aunt Marie presently.

Jane shook her head in silence. She could hear the pages of the magazine flutter faintly in her aunt's deliberate fingers.

"There's a very good article in it," continued Aunt Marie, in her pleasant practical New England voice, "by Cassandra Frothingham Perkins, on 'The Decline of Culture.'"

"Twenty-three, twenty-four," whispered Jane defensively. Then "Has it declined?" she asked. The innocence in her tone was not entirely ingenuous.

"Well, hasn't it?" returned Aunt Marie very practically, as before. Then, after a pause, "You know who Cassandra Frothingham Perkins is, don't you?"

"One of the Concord Perkinses," said Jane, as glibly as a child responding with "1492" or "1066" to the question of a history teacher. She had not spent twelve summers at Gull Rocks, Seaconsit, in vain.

Not a Burning Issue With Her.

"She's the daughter," said Aunt Marie, "of Samuel Wendell Perkins, who wrote the Perkins biography of Emerson and 'Literary Rambles in Old Concord.' The 'Atlantic' publishes a lot of her stuff."

"I've read it," said Jane briefly. Who cared, she thought perversely, if culture had declined? But the question was purely rhetorical. For obviously Cassandra Frothingham Perkins did. And Aunt Marie Carver. All the Carvers, in fact. Nevertheless, the decline of culture was not a burning issue with Jane.

She bent her head again over the knitting directions in The Woman's Home Magazine and her eye caught a flamboyant headline on the opposite page. "How Can We Keep Our Charm?", by Viola Vivasour. And below in explanatory vein, "Fifteen minutes a day devoted to Miss Vivasour's simple formula of face creams solves woman's eternal problem." But Aunt Marie was again speaking.

"Cassandra's made a little schedule," she said. "She claims that fifteen minutes a day, spent reading the best books—and she adds a little list of one hundred——"

How much less important, thought Jane wickedly, the decline of culture than that of charm! Not, however, in the Carver's circle. There the significance of a five-boot bookshelf would always rise above that of a good cosmetic. The society of her relatives-in-law made Jane feel wantonly frivolous.

Mother-in-Law Also Appears.

Jane heard the screened door open once more behind her and the heavy, slightly hesitant step of her mother-in-law crossing the piazza.

Mrs. Carver's footsteps paused at her side.

"Dexter doesn't think he can get me any lobster today, Jane." Mrs. Carver's voice was grave and just a trifle anxious. "Do you think Stephen would prefer bluefish or mackerel?"

"I don't know," said Jane.

"He's so fond of sea food," said Mrs. Carver.

Jane felt again that absurd surge of irritation. Stephen would never know what fish he was eating. Why fuss about it?

"I wanted to give him an old-fashioned shore dinner."

The wistful note in the worried voice suddenly touched Jane's heart. She looked up and met her mother-in-law's anxious gaze. The fat, elderly face was creased in lines of vivid disappointment. Old age was pathetic, thought Jane, secure in the citadel of her 36 summers. Mothers were pathetic.

"I think he'd love mackerel," she said warmly.

Mrs. Carver's face brightened.

"I shall keep on trying for the lobster," she said solemnly, "until the last minute."

Suddenly Loves Mrs. Carver.

Suddenly Jane loved her mother-in-law. She loved her for the solemnity. It was touching and disarming. Why didn't she always say the things that Mrs. Carver liked to hear? It was so easy to say them. She really must reform.

"Is that little Steve on the beach?" said Mrs. Carver.

"Yes," said Jane.

"Don't you think the sun is too hot for him?" asked Mrs. Carver.

"No," said Jane.

"The glare's very bright on those rocks," said Mrs. Carver, "and Miss Parrot never seems to notice——"

"The doctor said the sun was good for him," said Jane tartly. Her moment of reform was short-lived.

"We can't be too careful," said Mrs. Carver.

They couldn't be, of course. Why was she so perverse? Poor little Steve, pulled down, still, from his scarlet fever in June, still watched by his nurse, still worrying them all with that heart that wasn't quite right yet, but would be so the doctor said, by next spring!

"I think he ought to come into the shade," said Mrs. Carver.

Jane Calls Him to Her.

Jane rose abruptly and picked up the megaphone behind the hammock.

"Yoo-hoo!" she called. "Miss Parrot!" The white cap turned promptly in response to her call. "Bring Steve up, please!"

She sank on the steps again and picked up her knitting. She could see Miss Parrot's slender starched figure rise from behind her rock. It assumed a slightly admonitory angle. Steve's yellow head was raised from the sands in obvious protest.

"She doesn't know how to manage children," said Mrs. Carver.

Steve, pad and paintbox in hand, was wading through the beach grass, now, beside his nurse. His thin little voice could be heard, raised in inarticulate argument. Miss Parrot walked steadily on. Steve, reaching the smooth green turf of the lawn, paused to scratch a mosquito bite on his brown little knee.

"Why doesn't she wait for him? said Mrs. Carver.

"Oh, he's all right," said Jane. "He loves Miss Parrot."

Glares at His Grandmother.

Mrs. Carver watched her grandson's approach in silence.

"I don't want to come up, Mumsy!" he cried. "I was painting the harbour."

"Don't run, dear," said Mrs. Carver.

"You can finish your painting tomorrow," said Jane.

"The light will be different, Mumsy!" His tanned little 9-year-old countenance was eager with protest.

"Mrs. Carver thinks the sun is too hot on the beach, Miss Parrot," said Jane.

The trained nurse turned her pretty, pleasant face upon them with a tolerant smile.

"All righty!" she said. "Come on Stevey, we'll paint in the garden.

"I don't want to," said Steve. He glared crossly at his grandmother.

Miss Parrot smiled again throwing a glace of frank, professional understanding at the adults on the verandah.

"Oh, yes, you do," she said easily. "If Grandma wants you to. Grandma's the doctor!"

POST-ZAIN CONTEST CLOSES AT MIDNIGHT

about their concerns. The very ads you think are not good enough to win may have just the idea the judges will select as the $1,000 grand prize winner or as a winner of one of the worthwhile special prizes.

The zero hour is fast approaching. Write all the ads you can today. This is your last chance.

If the ads you've written are few and your chances look slim write more ads about these 35 concerns, increase your chances to win. You must hurry and make each hour of today count. One of those last ads written on the spur of the moment may have the $1,000 winning idea in the eyes of the judges.

This can be a $1,000 day for you. The hours and even the minutes are precious. Make haste, for when the clock tolls 12 unless your ads are in all the last-minute efforts will have been in vain. You can win the $1,000 grand prize—it is up to you.

Through error, the advertisement of National Pale Dry Ginger Ale, published with a picture in yesterday's Post, was not accompanied by its author's name.

It was submitted in the Zain contest by Mrs. L. D. Buford, of 713 Nineteenth street northwest.

BOOK PRIZE RECIPE WINNERS GROWING

Honorable Mention Achieved by Others in Submitting Savory Ideas.

More and more the housewives of The Washington Post's big family of readers are entering the race for the $5 prize given weekly for the best recipe sent in based on the food advertisements on the Saturday Home Economics Page.

In addition to the cash prizes books are given weekly as well as honorable mentions.

Letters from the readers indicate that many of them are keeping the recipes published on this page for future reference. Contributors are sending in their choicest recipes for this purpose. Book awards and honorable mentions are:

DEVIL FOOD CAKE.
(Awarded book prize.)

Part one:
2 squares chocolate—to 2 ounces
1 tablespoon cocoa
3 tablespoons water
1¼ cups sugar
½ cup butter (scant) or shortening

Part two:
1 cup sour or buttermilk
1 teaspoon soda
Yolk of one egg
2 scant cups Washington Flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

Heat and melt chocolate, sugar and water; when dissolved add butter and set aside to cool. Mix milk, soda and yolk beaten; add the chocolate mixture and then the flour and baking powder. Stir well and bake in two layers in moderate oven. This makes a large cake.

Boiled Icing.

1 cup granulated sugar
Not quite ½ cup water
Whites of 2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
Pinch of soda

Boil sugar and water over a slow fire, but do not stir. Boil until sirup will spin a thread when poured by drops from a spoon. Add a pinch (not any more) of soda. This makes the icing fluffy and keeps it soft with a stiff crest. When the sirup has spun a thread pour very slowly over the stiffly beaten whites of eggs and continue beating until cool and stiff enough to spread without running. Add flavoring.—By Mrs. Martha P. Leonard, 1495 Newton street northwest.

SOUTHERN EGG BREAD.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

An old North Carolina recipe that has never failed, using the famous Indian Head cornmeal milled by Wilkins-Rogers Milling Co., Washington, D. C. Recipe:

2 cups cornmeal (Indian Head)
1¼ cups boiling water
2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
2 eggs
2½ cups sweet milk
2 teaspoons baking powder

Method—Scald cornmeal with boiling water, add shortening, and partly cool. Beat eggs thoroughly, add the milk and salt; combine the two mixtures, add baking powder, and when thoroughly blended turn into a well-greased pan and bake 25 to 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven. Serve in the pan in which it is baked.

COFFEE BISQUE MOUSSE.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

1 cup Swings' Java and Mocha coffee
1 pint cream
1 tablespoon Knox sparkling gelatine
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup pecan nut meats, chopped or ground

Dissolve gelatine in milk for ten minutes, or until soft, then add to 1 cup strong hot coffee. Add sugar and salt and let stand until cool. Beat until thick and foamy. Whip cream and add to coffee mixture. Fold in nuts and vanilla. Pour in tray of General Electric refrigerator or pack in ice and salt for four hours and freeze. Will make six servings.

MRS R. R. KNOWLES.
Seat Pleasant, Md.

COFFEE TAPIOCA.

When boiling, stir in 4 heaping tablespoons of "minute tapioca." Stir for 10 minutes, add 2-3 cup of sugar, cook 10 minutes longer. Pour into a jelly mould with a large hole in the center. When wanted, turn out on to a large round plate, fill the center with thick whipped cream to which has been added (after whipping) finely cut marshmallows (about 6), two tablespoons of chopped nuts and two tablespoons of cut maraschino cherries. Serve with lady fingers. Takes 3 hours to stiffen and chill.

Toothsome 'Honey Cookies' Recipe Captures $5 Prize

MRS. HELEN MULLENBERG, of 822 Longfellow street northwest, making "honey cookies," the recipe for which won her a $5 prize in The Post contest this week.

Mrs. Helen Mullenberg Also Tells of How to Make Icing.

The weekly $5 prize offered by The Post for the best recipe using ingredients advertised on the Saturday food page goes this week to Mrs. Helen Mullenberg. She sent in a recipe for dainty and toothsome "honey cookies."

These little cookies may be iced and, in addition to the formula for making the cakes, Mrs. Mullenberg, who lives at 822 Longfellow street northwest, sent in a recipe for a wholesome icing for them.

HONEY COOKIES.
(Awarded $5 Prize.)

½ cup Zirkel's pure honey
½ cup molasses
¾ cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon lemon rind
2½ cups flour
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup chopped citron
½ cup chopped nuts

Mix the honey and molasses and bring to a boil, then cool thoroughly. Add brown sugar, well-beaten egg, lemon rind and juice. Sift flour once before measuring. Mix and sift flour, soda, spices, stir into the honey and sugar mixture. Add citron and nuts. Let stand overnight in ice box. In the morning roll out to ¼ inch, cut with oblong cookie cutter. Place cookies very close together and bake. Before removing from the pan, while hot, spread with following icing:

Boil 1 cup sugar and ½ cup water until it spins a thread, remove from fire, add ¼ cup powdered sugar.

FISH PALATABLE, NUTRITIOUS FOOD

Housewives Number It With Low-Cost Diets; Frozen, Remain Fresh.

The values found in fish are too often overlooked by housewives in search of palatable and nutritious low-cost diets, according to the experts of the Bureau of Home Economics, Department of Agriculture, cooperating with the Woman's Division of the President's Emergency Commission on Employment.

Fish can be furnished in the interior as well as on the seacoast in the form of cod flakes, canned pink salmon, large-sized sardines packed in tomato sauce, and other forms of canned, salted or otherwise preserved fish.

Many marine and Great Lakes fish are moderate in price near where they are caught and comparatively little more expensive at a distance thanks to modern shipping facilities. According to John Ruel Manning, of the Bureau of Fisheries, United States Department of Commerce, frozen fish remain fresh fish providing they are properly frozen and kept in storage.

Quick Freezing Best.

Of the several freezing methods, quick freezing is by far the best, Mr. Manning declares, for then there is little, if any, possibility of a change in the chemical composition of the fish. Unfortunately this method is not universally used at present, but as soon as housewives demand quick frozen fish, the method probably will be adopted by all packers.

Package fish, which is the name given to steaks of cod, halibut and salmon and fillets of several species of fish, especially haddock, are shipped frozen throughout the country. They are so named because they are wrapped in varying weights for home and hotel consumption. This method reduces shipping charges, since the inedible portions are discarded at the packing plant. These are converted into fish meal for animal feeding, and, in some cases, valuable oils are a by-product. Because of the popularity of package fish the haddock, which is caught the year round along the New England seacoast, has surpassed in quantity the catch of cod.

Whole fish are also frozen and shipped, and the same rules for knowing whether a fish is fresh or not can be applied to the frozen variety, with the exception that the eyes may be slightly wrinkled and sunken. Frozen fish should be taken home and cooked while frozen and should not be thawed out before cooking, the bureau points out. If the outside is heated quickly the juices will not leak out and the flavor will be retained. But the temperature should be reduced immediately after both sides are heated, and the fish should be cooked at a low temperature, for a short time to heat through and develop flavor.

All Fish Is Tender.

Fish is all tender as there is very little connective tissue to break down as in the case of meat. Consequently it falls apart easily when cooked. The flavor of fish is delicate and for variety it is often cooked in fat and served with acid foods, like lemon, tomatoes and slaw.

Marine fish are rich in iodine and are especially valuable as food in certain disorders of the thyroid, Mr. Manning says. All fish contain important minerals and large amounts of protein, the substance which builds tissues and supplies energy to the body.

Like lean meat, fish, with the exception of fish oils, is not considered an adequate source of vitamins. Salmon oil compares favorably with medicinal cod liver oil in the content of vitamins A and D. Recent research in the Bureau of Fisheries has shown that other fish oils are excellent sources of vitamin D, a fact which Mr. Manning predicts will, in time, make it possible for this country to curtail its large importation of cod liver oil.

Canned salmon is one of the principal fish products from the standpoints of nutrition as well as economy. It is one of the few foods from which it is possible to get vitamin D, the antirochitic vitamin and it is outstanding among fishes in its fat content. It also contains vitamin G, which is the foe of pellagra.

The large canned sardine is also higher than most fish in fat content and since it is usually packed in tomato sauce it is a valuable addition to the diet.

The earliest ways of preserving fish were smoking, salting, and a combination of the two, Mr. Manning explained. Though not so popular as at one time, because of the advent of freezing and refrigeration, smoked salted fish still are much in demand. With these methods of preserving, the nutritive value of fish remains unchanged.

Salmon and Potato Puff

These recipes serve five persons:

Salmon and Potato Puff.

1 pound can salmon (2 cups)
2 tablespoons butter or other fat
2 tablespoons chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes
3 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Few drops tabasco sauce

Drain the fish, flake it with a fork and remove all bones. Melt the fat and cook the celery and parsley in it for a few minutes. Then combine with the salmon, mashed potatoes and seasonings, add the beaten egg yolks and beat the mixture until very light. Fold in the well-beaten whites of eggs, pile lightly at once into a greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one hour, or until set in the center and lightly browned. Serve in the dish.

If salmon and potato puff is baked in ramekins or custard cups, it will be especially light and fluffy and attractive for serving as a luncheon dish.

Codfish, Spaghetti, and Tomatoes.

½ pound salt codfish, diced
2 cups spaghetti, broken in small pieces
1 quart canned tomatoes
2 bay leaves
1 onion, sliced
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons olive oil or other fat
¼ cup chopped olives
Salt if needed

Soak the codfish in cold water to cover for 2 hours or longer—until sufficient salt has been removed—and drain. Cook the spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender, and drain. Simmer the tomatoes and codfish with the bay leaves for about twenty minutes and remove the bay leaves. Cook the onion and parsley in the olive oil for a few minutes, combine all the ingredients and cook for a few minutes longer. Serve hot.

Scotch Wafers.

2 cups rolled oats
1 cup sifted flour
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
3 tablespoons fat
⅓ cup milk

Mix the dry ingredients, add the fat, and mix together thoroughly. Add enough milk to make a dough sufficiently hard to roll (about ⅓ of a cup). Knead this dough well, roll very thin, and cut with a biscuit cutter. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for fifteen or twenty minutes. When cool, the wafers should be very crisp.

Nonstop Fliers Hurt in Crash.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 29 (A.P.).—The pilot and owner of an airplane engaged in a nonstop flight from San Francisco to New York were injured late today when the plane upset after landing near here. Woody Hockaday, Wichita, Kan., is owner, and Lawrence Beufer, pilot, of the plane.

Macaroni With Salmon And Peanut Butter

1 can salmon, flaked
2 cups white sauce
3 tablespoons peanut butter
½ cup buttered bread crumbs.

Parboil the macaroni for 7 minutes in 2 quarts rapidly boiling water to which ½ tablespoon salt has been added. Drain.

In a well-buttered casserole place alternate layers of the macaroni, flaked salmon, white sauce, and peanut butter until all are used up, having a layer of macaroni on top. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes.

White Sauce.

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup hot milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper.

In a double boiler melt the butter, add the flour and blend thoroughly. Add the hot milk and seasonings. Cook for ten or fifteen minutes or until the sauce thickens.

Spaghetti, Tomato Salad

1 can Mueller's cooked spaghetti
2 cups tomato juice
¼ cup cider vinegar
1 small onion, minced
1½ tablespoons sugar
1 bayleaf
1 tablespoon parsley, minced
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons gelatine
2 tablespoons cold water
½ cup sliced, stuffed olives
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 head lettuce
Mayonnaise for garnish

Place the tomato juice in a saucepan and add the vinegar, onion, sugar, bayleaf, parsley and seasonings. Bring to boiling point and cook for 1 minute, stirring constantly.

Soften the gelatine in cold water, then dissolve over boiling water. Pour the hot tomato mixture over the gelatine and blend thoroughly. Strain and pour half the liquid into a mold. Chill.

On top of the congealed gelatine mixture place half the sliced olives and eggs. Cover with the cooked spaghetti and add the remaining olives and eggs. Then add the rest of the tomato gelatine and place in ice box until cold and firm.

When ready to serve, cut in slices and arrange on crisp lettuce leaves. Garnish with mayonnaise.

Upside-Down Cake.

Standard one-egg cake batter
4 tablespoons butter
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup diced pineapple
1 cup raisins or dates
1 cup cherry or other preserves
1 cup nuts

Melt the butter in an iron skillet; add the sugar and stir until blended; remove the skillet from the fire; spread the sugar and butter mixture in an even layer; then add the fruits and nuts in layers; pour the batter on top (the skillet should not be more than two-thirds full) and bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) about 45 minutes. Loosen the cake from the edges, and turn out as quickly as possible after taking it from the oven. Serve with hard sauce or whipped cream. Whole preserved fruits, such as pears, figs, &c., may be used instead of pineapple and dates.

Orange Cakes.

2-3 cup sugar
1 egg
1½ cups self-rising Washington flour
½ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel

Cream the fat and sugar together until the sugar granules have dissolved; add the egg; beat until well blended; add the self-rising Washington flour alternately with the orange juice; add the orange peel and pour into greased muffin tins or paper baking cups, and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. When cold, cover with orange frosting.

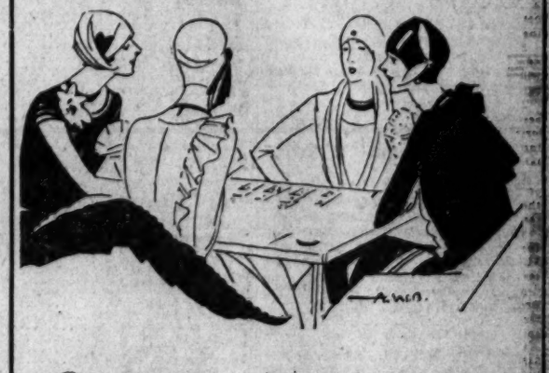
Chevy Chase Swimming Pool SWIM

—at this delightful pool in the sparkling, clear water that is always fresh and, according to local health authorities, is pure enough to drink.



CAREFREE AFTERNOONS ARE YOURS

NOW you can have the afternoons for bridge games, movies, shopping tours, romps with the children, or any of those things you've never been able to do . . . with never a worry about rushing home to start dinner. When you have an Electric Range, that worry won't spoil any more afternoons.

It seems almost too good to be true. A little timer on the range and the heat control dial do all your worrying for you. Just slip the meal in the oven and adjust the dial any time during the day. A perfectly cooked meal will be ready when you return.

For at the right time the heat turns on. It stays on at uniform, sustained temperature until the meal is cooked. And when it turns off, the meal stays deliciously warm in the flavor-sealed insulated oven.

You owe it to yourself

STOCKS LOSE GAINS AS MARKET BREAKS

Selling Wave Is Finally Checked by Rally; Net Drops Are Slight.

New York, May 29 (A.P.).—The stock market closed but the month with a wave of general selling today. The unloading began in the rails, overflowed into the food shares and finally reached the general list, although, with the exception of the two groups mentioned, losses were not particularly severe.

A preholiday rally seemed in the making during the early dealings, but a break in New York Central upset the rails, and by afternoon the entire market was skidding. Weakness characterized the final transactions. Sales of 2,100,000 shares approximated the average turnover of the past fortnight.

There was no immediate development on which to hang the weakness of the carrier stocks. The market feels that any rise in freight rates is still some distance away. Meanwhile, traffic and earnings are at a low ebb and unfavorable dividend actions are piling up. The payment on Erie second preferred was omitted today.

Income Causes Break.

The most obvious reason for New York Central's 4-point break was shrinkage in April income. Baltimore & Ohio, off 4⅝ net, closed on a 10 per cent yield basis. Delaware & Hudson slumped more than 5; New Haven and Southern Pacific, 3, and Frisco, Union Pacific, Atchison and Pennsylvania, 1½ to 2½.

United States Steel lived up to its recent reputation for making a new low today. This time it sagged to 29⅞, off 1¼, but at the close was unchanged. The preferred lost a point. General Motors broke to a new 1931 minimum in late selling. Westinghouse, Bethlehem, American Can, Sears Roebuck Paramount, Radio-Keith, Consolidated Gas and a few other leaders lost a point or slightly more. American Telephone dropped 2⅜ net, which was also the loss in American & Foreign Power.

Food stocks and numerous specialties found the market thin. National Biscuit, Beatrice Creamery, National Dairy, Borden, National Cash Register, Drug, Procter & Gamble and Loose Wiles lost 2 to 4. Selling of the dairy issues was attributed in some quarters to metropolitan price cutting in ice cream.

Rock Island Loses.

The day's most spectacular declines occurred in the Rock Island preferreds, the 6 per cent issue breaking 32 points and the 7 per cent stock 20 points. Sales in both were small. For the first four months and the road returned a deficit of nearly $500,000 after fixed charges. Its next bond maturity comes in 1934.

Changes in retail and wholesale trade this week have been narrow—too narrow, said Dun's, to gauge a trend. Bradstreet's finds the former branch of business spotty, but about holding its own, although sentiment has improved.

Except for breaks in the May positions, grains were steady. Wheat closed about unchanged and there were small net gains and losses in corn. Cotton rallied under covering, finishing 12 to 14 points higher.

Foreign exchanges generally held around recent levels. The Spanish peseta provided the outstanding exception, cables going to 8.81 for cables, down 29 points, but cut the loss to 16 points. The French franc firmed, which seemed to reflect reparation of funds from other countries. Sterling was steady.

Canada's Mines Yield More Precious Metals

Ottawa, May 29 (A.P.).—Production of silver in Canada amounted to 1,886,652 ounces in March, 10.7 per cent less than February, but 40 per cent above March 1930, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics announced today. Gold output in March aggregated 203,813 ounces against 195,118 ounces in February and 163,771 ounces in March, 1930.

Nickel output in March amounted to 8,358,289 pounds, making the total for the first quarter, 21,552,418 pounds. Copper production totaled 25,503,733 pounds, an increase of 11 per cent over February but a decline of 9.5 per cent from March, 1930.

Metro-Goldwyn Earns $3,535,439 Profits

New York, May 29 (A.P.).—Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, controlled by Loew's, Inc., today reported for the 28 weeks ended March 13 net profit of $3,535,439, after expenses and Federal taxes. For the 28 weeks ended March 14, 1930 the company reported profit of $6,076,322 before Federal taxes.

Erie Omits Dividend.

New York, May 29 (A.P.).—Directors of the Erie Railroad have omitted the semiannual dividend of $2 a share on the second preferred stock. The regular semi-annual payment of $2 on the first preferred was authorized.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 29 (A.P.).—Except for a sudden collapse of May corn prices, the month-end settlement of May contracts in all grains took place today without fireworks. A maximum drop of 3¼ cents a bushel resulted from almost complete absence of buyers of May corn during the final dealings and from belated efforts which holders made to sell out. Government-sponsored agencies were active in letting go of May wheat whenever prices advanced.

Corn closed irregular, 2¼ cents down to ⅛ cent gain; oats at ⅞ decline to ¼ advance; oats, 1¼ off to ⅛ up, and provisions varying from 5 cents setback to a rise of 12 cents.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive to upturns in hog values.

BOND SALES RECORD NEW LOWER PRICES

Gilt Edge Issues Hold Firm or Gain at Close; Day's Turnover $12,843,000.

New York, May 29 (A.P.).—The bond market made a number of new records for low prices today in the most active session since April 1. Today's sales on the stock exchange aggregated $12,843,000. The average prices of ten bonds each of railroads and industrials reached new 1931 bottom levels at 97.5 and 83.1, respectively, and the composite average of these groups and ten utilities also reached a new low at 93.6.

However, the movement of prices was not universally downward. Most corporate obligations of gilt edge or even high rating were steady to higher, and foreign issues were irregularly higher. Bonds of Argentina, Antioquia, Chile, Colombia and Uruguay were generally higher. Most German loans moved ahead also.

Most Liberty and United States Treasury bonds were quiet, the active trading being concentrated in three issues, and they made mixed changes. Details of the new offering of Treasury obligations are expected to be made public in Monday morning's newspapers.

The great majority of domestic corporate bonds closed lower. Such bonds as Southern Pacific 4½s of 1981, Shell Union Oil 5s, St. Louis & San Francisco series A 4s, 4½s of 1978 and series B 5s, Erie 5s of 1967 and of 1975, Missouri Pacific series I 5s and general 4s, Pennsylvania series D 4½s Chesapeake & Ohio series B 4½s, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Rock Island refunding 4s of 1934, Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, American & Foreign Power 5s, Atchison convertible 4½s, Atlantic Refining 5s and Boston & Maine 5s were active at lower levels. Some of this group hit new low prices for this year.

A continuing good demand for high-grade bonds was reflected in higher prices for such issues as American Telephone collateral 5s, Cincinnati Gas & Electric series A 4s, Kansas City Power & Light series B 4½s and Kansas City Terminal 4s.

cided. Twenty-two European nations have been battling for that honor and there are but eight left. They are Great Britain, Japan, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Italy, Denmark, South Africa and Egypt.

Great Britain, this year represented by Bunny Austin and Fred Perry, as tender in years as our own representatives, is favored to come through in the European section.

Supposing for the nonce that Great Britain does win, then it will play the United States. The winner is then eligible to challenge France, whose duty it has been since 1927 to keep the Davis Cup from tarnishing.

Americans Use "Sock" to Win.

Yesterday's doubles shamed Thursday's exhibitions. There must be still some today who wonder how America won, so acute was the play of the South American jumping beans, Zappa and Castillo. But America did win, not by any hitherto undivulged set of tactics, not by superior position play, not by more active thinking, nor even better placing of their shots, but by that American characteristic best known by the word "sock."

Zappa and Castillo were blasted off the court, but they seemed to still remain there, if that equation can be allowed. They were bombarded by two of the greatest hitters in the game, and they yielded, but not before they had taken a set and lost another by the unkind margin of a missed overhead smash.

Zappa and Castillo gave the slightly undercapacity audience its first intimation that a real battle was going to be enacted before their eyes after losing five out of the first six games. Then Zappa, foreshadowing his brilliant play to come, volleyed an acutely angled shot out of the reach of the Americans on the final point of his own serve, to bring the score to 5—2, in favor of the Americans. Zappa it was, too, who wrought the volley which wrested Shields' service from the American, to make the score 5—3, and then it, too, was Zappa who came through well on his own serve to come within one game of the eventual winners.

Here Wood stepped into the picture, whacked his serve into the courts of the enemy with such pace and accuracy that they could do nothing but give up the ghost at 6—4. Wood shot two service aces by in this game.

The goddess of tennis, who regulates whether the balls aer going to strike the line or miss it by the veriest fraction, looked frigidly upon Argentina in the second set, as Zappa and Castillo, like men mounted on springs, met the shots of the hard-hitting Americans and forged to a 3-to-1 lead, aided by Castilla's two great passing shots off Wood's service, only to see the Americans tie the score by taking Castilla's service and holding Shields.

Zappa held sway in the seventh game to give his nation a 4—3 lead and actually fought with the ball to give his team 40 to 30 in the next game, with Wood serving only to have Castillo, all but overcome by the situation, net an overhead smash. The Americans tightened down and won the game, tying the score at 4 to 4. In the critical ninth game Castilla again dropped his service before the fury of the Americans' play, but Shields lost his own through a double fault and the score was deuced at 5 to 5. Service then held sway until Castilla lost his at love, at 6—6, his third service loss of the set. Shields ran out the set easily on his own delivery.

Argentinians' Volleys Hard in 3d Set.

Zappa and Castilla swept the Americans aside by dint of a great volleying attack in the third set, 6—2, Zappa fairly outdoing himself by scoring eight beautiful volleying placements, while Shields and Wood were backed into committing 20 errors. Castilla rendered his dark little colleague better support throughout, winning his service to give his team a 5-2 advantage. The South Americans broke Wood's service for the final game, which saw its finale in a four-cornered volleying match at the net which drew from the staid gallery a pure and simple yell.

The Americans came back from the 10-minute intermission new players, and after dropping the first game, beat their way into a 3-1 lead, breaking Castilla's serve along the way. Zappa served himself into a love game in the fifth game, but it was the last bit of flame the South Americans showed. Shield's heavy forehands were finding the lines and the openings to good effect and America went to 5-2 and 40-15.

Then Wood made the shot we spoke of.

TO GO ABROAD

Following their decisive defeat of the Argentinians, Frank X. Shields (upper) and Sidney Wood have been recommended to bear the burden for the United States in the singles against the European zone winner, supplanting George Lott and John Van Ryn, who were sent abroad early last month to practice for the match.

LOTT BEATEN BY CELTIC NETMAN

U. S. Davis Cup Hope Shows Temperament in Loss to Hughes.

AUTEUIL, France, May 29 (A.P.).—The last of the American contenders for the French hard courts singles championships passed out of the picture today with the surprising defeat of George Lott in the quarter-finals of the men's division and the elimination of Miss Elizabeth Ryan from the Women's play.

Miss Ryan, who has lived in England so long since leaving California that she now is more definitely allied with the British forces, went down before the fine stroking of the Spanish champion, Senorita Elia de Alvarez, of Spain, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4 in the quarter-final round, but Lott, veteran of the American Davis Cup squad and favorite to gain the final round, went down before a comparative unknown.

Lott's Overconfidence Aids Hughes.

His conqueror was G. P. Hughes, an Irishman who lost to Big Bill Tilden in four sets in this same tournament last year. Today Hughes took advantage of Lott's irritability and apparent overconfidence to win in five hard sets, 3—6, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4. Thus the last of the American challengers followed the path of Johnny Van Ryn yesterday and for the first time in several years there will be no overseas challenger to battle the French in the finals.

Up to today it had been regarded as a certainty that Lott would face Jean Borotra—and probably beat him—for the singles title Henri Cochet has been unable to defend this year because of illness. But Hughes told his friends before the match that he was going to beat Lott and after two sets he let the American beat himself.

Lott's temper exploded over a line decision in the third set and the Chicago veteran immediately tossed the set away, 6—2. Another outburst punctured the fourth game of the fourth set and thereafter the atmosphere never cleared for the American. Hughes kept calmly at his work, forcing Lott to play the kind of game he wanted, while the Irishman covered the court well and handled all sorts of difficult shots. But it was Lott's errors, rather than the Irishman's brilliant play, that decided the issue.

Christian Boussus, French Davis Cup youngster, reached the semifinal bracket with Hughes by defeating

S. California Qualifies Stars; Stanford Loses Smith and Dyer.

By ALLAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, May 29 (A.P.).—Shortly after the mighty air armada of the American Army had roared in dazzling formation over the premises this afternoon, the track and field forces of the Far West swept Franklin Field with a success of performances, forecasting their triumph over the East for the tenth time in eleven years.

Qualifying tests in eleven of the fifteen events making up the intercollegiate A. A. A. championships, marked by two record-shattering performances, satisfied a handful of onlookers that the champion Southern California team and Stanford will have the battle for team honors tomorrow all to themselves.

Led by the rangy and sensational Ben Eastman, who lived up to his enthusiastic advance notices by qualifying easily in the 440 and 880 yard runs, Stanford overcome two heartbreaking setbacks to capture sixteen qualifying places and lead the pack.

Stanford's Chances Dealt Blow.

Stanford athletes monopolized the field events, qualifying four men in the discuss and three in the shot put. Their chances of beating Southern California tomorrow were jolted by the elimination of Capt. Roger Smith in the hurdles, and Hector Dyer, the 220-yard champion. These two stars failed to recover from leg injuries. Smith did not compete and Dyer was eliminated in the trials as he pulled up lame again.

Southern California, paced by flying Frank Wykoff, who set a new 100-yard dash record of 9.6 seconds in his semifinal heat collected thirteen qualifying places with its powerful and well-balanced squad. The Trojans placed in ten of the eleven preliminary events.

Wykoff was in great form in the "100." After a 10-second romp in his first heat, he came back in the semifinals to win by 6 yards from Al Kelly, of Georgetown, in the new record time for the 55-year-old Eastern meet. It was short of his own best time of 9:4 seconds, which stands as the American record, but displaced the former meet mark of 9.7 seconds, first set by Al Leconey, of Lafayette, in 1922, equalled by Henry Russell, of Cornell, in 1926 and by Wykoff last year.

Tolan to Furnish Chief Opposition.

The Trojan flash's chief opposition tomorrow will come from Eddie Tolan, the bespectacled Negro star and only entry from the University of Michigan. Tolan's best time in the 100 today was 9.8 seconds, after which he qualified easily in the 220-yard dash.

Yale, with seven qualifiers, and Pennsylvania, with six, led the Eastern teams, who apparently will have to be contented tomorrow with a battle among themselves for third place.

Pennsylvania's star broad jumper, Lemoine Boyle, outdid himself in the trials with a record leap of 25 feet 1½ inches, as he accounted for the day's second record performance. This added only one-quarter of an inch to the former mark of 25 feet and ⅞ of an inch set by Jesse Hill, of Southern California, in 1929.

Eastman, Stanford's bespectacled sophomore, was started in both middle distance runs by an eleventh-hour decision, prompted by his sensational quarter-mile trial in 48.3 seconds, eased up.

The complete distribution of qualifying places by colleges: Stanford, 16; Southern California, 13; Yale,

40 Cars Poised for Start Of Today's Speed Classic

Daring Drivers Seek $100,000 in Prizes in 500-Mile Indianapolis Race; One Oil Burner Entered.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 29 (A.P.). America's automobile classic—the 500-mile race to be run tomorrow—brought thousands of speed fans to Indianapolis tonight.

The same festive spirit which has made the event one of the most colorful in sportdom prevailed as the visitors milled about in hotels or lined up their cars at the gates of the speedway.

Starting at 10 o'clock in the morning, the rough riding race will be a challenge to the skill and courage of the 40 contestants. The elements have not been kind to the 2½-mile brick course, and pilots have found new hazards lurking on the hairpin curves.

Undaunted by two fatalities and other crashes in practice, the drivers are prepared to attack the speed record of 101.13 miles an hour set by Peter de Paolo in 1925. Prizes totaling $100,000 will be distributed with $20,000 going to the winner.

The surprising number of near stock cars that won places in the starting line-up, the Cummins oil burning speedster, Leon Duray's two-cycle hope, and improvements to the special race jobs have combined to stimulate interest in tomorrow's classic.

Attention also will be riveted on Billy Arnold, Chicago, who nearly broke the record in winning last year and who will be behind the same eight-cylinder front drive.

Louie Meyer, American driving champion in 1928 and 1929, and William (Short) Cantlon, who finished second last May, have special 16-cylinder racers that are considered most likely to give Arnold trouble in the dash for the individual lap prize money.

Arnold, Meyer and Cantlon are conceded to have the fastest cars in the race, with Wild Bill Cummins and Duray right behind them.

Cantlon's car is said to be capable of 200 miles an hour. The Detroit driver, however, has had difficulty in getting ready for the race and his speed ambitions may have been checked.

The oil burner expects to go through without a stop unless tire trouble develops, at about 93 miles an hour. Cummins, who set a record for that type of motor car at Daytona Beach, Fla., last winter, is pioneering with the racer, it being the first of its kind ever to participate in a track event. Its outstanding feature is economy of fuel.

The field is the fastest ever entered in the Indianapolis race. All but one of the 39 gasoline powered entries had to show speed exceeding 100 miles an hour to win a place in the line-up.

Thirty-one of the starters will be powered by eight-cylinder motors, three will be of six-cylinders each, and six will depend on four cylinders. Meyer, Cantlon and Duray have the 16-cylinder cars.

G. U. DEFEATS OHIO STATE NINE, 11-10

Umpire Baiting Mars Game as King's Hit Wins in 9th.

By JACK ESPEY.

WESLEY FESLER, the all-American, and his teammates from Ohio State University are wrongly nicknamed Buckeyes. Yesterday afternoon, playing Georgetown University on the Reservoir Road diamond, the visitors proved that only such names as Wildcats, Terrors or Bulldogs were applicable.

They wrangled with the umpires and collected about the arbiters at the plate in heated fashion that would make a major league scene of protest look like a prayer meeting, but all this gained them but a long chorus of Bronx cheers from the gallery of 1,000, while Georgetown won the ball game, 11 to 10.

As far as ability was concerned the visitors were as good as most of the college teams that appear here annually. They outhit Georgetown, 14 to 9, and rallied in the eighth inning to score six runs to take the lead, 9 to 5. Again in the ninth they demonstrated their staying qualities when they scored once to tie the count again following a Hilltop rally in the eighth that had produced five runs.

Rulings Favor Georgetown.

Two decisions in particular brought forth the full fury of the Buckeye tongues, both rulings favoring Georgetown. With the home club trailing, 8 to 9, in the eighth, with two out and runners on first and second, First Baseman Fichter tagged Baumann off first for what appeared the third out. But Base Umpire Morrissey, from his position behind the mound, claimed that Bill Kermode, Buckeye pitcher, had committed a balk, this moving the runners up a notch. Both then scored when Walter Morris punched a single to center.

Having tied the score at 10-10 in their half of the ninth, the Ohioans almost went mad when Umpire White called a ball on Dick King, who was

ROBINS BEAT GIANTS ON ERROR

Ott's Misplay in 9th Lets in Winning Run, 3-2.

NEW YORK, May 29 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins defeated the Giants 3 to 2 today in the opening game of their series, scoring their first victory of the year at the Polo Grounds.

Mel Ott's error in the ninth inning was the deciding factor in the closely contested game. Ott booted Fresco Thompson's single and Gordon Slade, who had walked, raced all the way home from first on the play to score the winning run. Clarence Mitchell, veteran Giant southpaw, pitched well enough to win but the Giants did not hit behind him. They collected only six hits off Vance and Shaute.

The Giants got both their runs off Vance in the fourth on Terry's double, a wild pitch, Jackson's single and steal and a wild heave into center field by Lombardi. Frederick and Lopez batted in the other Brooklyn runs, both on infield outs.

Yanks Invade Today for Twin Bill

Jones and Burke Get Box Assignments as Nats Return.

Face 20-Game Home Stand; 2d Place Is at Stake.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

FOLLOWING an absence of a month, with the exception of two single Sabbath encounters, Manager Walter Johnson and his charges open a long home stay starting this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, when the Yankees will be met in a double-header. With the Mackmen 4½ games in front, the keenest competition for any one place in the standing is that being furnished by the Nationals and Yankees for the runner-up berth.

The Nats are on top this morning, but conditions may be reversed by the time the sun goes down this evening. Southpaw Bobby Burke has looked so good in relief shifts this season that Johnson has decided to give him a crack at a starting berth and he will face the Yankees in one of the games this afternoon, with the veteran, "Sad Sam" Jones, drawing the mound assignment in the other.

"Marse Joe" McCarthy is expected to use Vernon Gomez and Herb Pennock. It was the former who hurled for the New Yorkers when they snapped the Mackmen's winning streak at 17 last Tuesday, when he turned in a brilliant performance. Pennock was beaten by the Nats once this season, but was given credit for his team's 6-5 triumph in New York last Monday, although the Nats hammered him out of the box in staging a 4-run rally in the ninth inning which was only one short of tying the score.

Resin Bag to Grace Pitcher's Mound.

The 25,000 or more fans who are expected to turn out to welcome the Nats home will see an addition to the teams' equipment in the form of a little resin bag lying behind the pitcher's box. At the league's special meeting held in Cleveland Wednesday, the magnates decided to tear a leaf from the National League's book and to permit the use of this substance. Official advices to this effect were received by the umpires in time to apply in the final in Boston Thursday.

As a matter of fact, it is no secret that the pitchers who considered resin a help have been using it right along, but on the sly, so the new rule merely enables them to come out in the open with it.

On the trip just completed the Nationals literally burned up the West, winning nine of eleven games, but they did not fare so well in their games in the East, the result being that they had to be satisfied with a record of 15 victories in 24 starts—not so bad, except that several of these defeats were inexcusable and were more or less gifts by the Nats.

Twenty Games During Home Stand.

Twenty games will be played during the home stand which opens today. In addition to this afternoon's double-header with the Yankees, a single game is listed for tomorrow, with Monday, an open date on the schedule, being used to play off the 14-inning tie which resulted on April 28. Then the Western teams make their first appearance of the season in the Capital, four games being listed for each.

Bucky Harris' Tigers open the invasion Tuesday and then follow, in the order named, Chicago, Cleveland and St. Louis. It is during this sixteen-game stretch that the Nats are confident of making plenty of hay, basing their hopes on the manner in which they outclassed these teams on the trip just concluded.

Johnson Dissatisfied With Liska.

Manager Johnson is far from satisfied with the showing made by Pitcher Ad Liska since he rejoined the team. The young subway-ball hurler rejoined the club nearly two weeks ago after wiring that the miracle man who treated his ailing arm in Dwight, Neb., had cured him and that he was ready to pitch. Liska reported as the Nats were leaving St. Louis and took his first workout in Chicago, being hit on the muscle of his salary wing by a wild throw during Chisox fielding practice before he had hardly gotten warmed up.

Johnson has been making due allowance for this injury, but it was

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

I AM not up on my tennis, hence when I heard it remarked by the office wag that his mashie niblick was about as useful as the nonplaying captain of the Davis Cup Team I was intrigued by the simile, knowing full well the futility of anything he attempted to do with the hybrid iron that has weighted down his bag these many years.

I found out that both United States and Argentina are sporting nonplaying captains of their teams in the current Davis Cup embroglio at Chevy Chase, and I do recall the pictures in the newsprints showing two very country-clubbish gentlemen locked in a grim-set handshake just in front of the net in a scene that was supposed to mark the opening ceremonies of the match.

It seems, then, that, instead of slipping off their jackets, reaching for their rackets and throwing themselves into the battle to settle this American zone finals as captains of legend do, the nonplaying gentry shuffled off to the sidelines, ensconced themselves as best they could in a couple of straight-backed chairs, and proceeded forthwith to fight it out vigorously for United States and Argentina in their respective minds' eye that roved the court in narrowed glare as the noncommissioned members of the troupe flung themselves into the battle.

Sideline Coaching

But I understand that the duties of the nonplaying captains end by no means with the prematch handshake. Of course, there is no coaching permitted from the sidelines, but it is within the bounds of tennis to pass along a word or two of encouragement, or mayhap advice as the players pause between games to mop a sweaty brow or circle along the sidelines in the exchange of courts. Owing to the briefness of these intermissions, the words of the nonplaying captains must of necessity be well chosen, and my informant tells me that the nonplaying captains confine their workouts to the business of polishing their instructive vocabulary with razor-edge conciseness as the desired objective.

The current nonplaying captains, at least the United States nonplaying captain, has a mark to shoot at if he would equal the achievement of the recently graduated nonplaying captain, Mr. Fitz-Eugene Dixon, who holds the Davis Cup record for sideline coaching and also the free-style record among nonplaying captains for before-and-after the match quotations for the newsprint in which he always succeeded in throwing off the shackles of time and conciseness.

About the Referees

As an innocent bystander in this Davis Cup business, I was further confused by the peculiarly Davis Cup methods of officiating the matches. I read somewhere that the Hon. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State, had agreed to act as honorary referee of the match at Chevy Chase and that Abner Y. Leech would be the acting referee. After admiring the manner and poise with which Mr. Leech occupied the referee's chair high on the latticework just abaft the net, I was surprised to learn that the man in the referee's chair was not Mr. Leech, the acting referee, but Mr. Arthur Hellen, the actual referee, which, it seems, is a referee of a different color than either the honorary referee or the acting referee.

Davis Cup tennis, too, gets right down to the fine level of balkline billiard, in the supervision of play. I was indeed surprised to learn several years ago that it was no uncommon thing for a billiard champion to refuse to proceed with a championship match if the temperature of the room or auditorium was not according to specifications. It seems that a small variance of the thermometer in either direction has the untoward effect of increasing or decreasing the sentiveness of the ivory balls to the point where the cue masters may go far awry in their judgment of delicate strokes.

Tennis Efficiency

The temperature does not have the same effect on a tennis ball, but Davis Cup play gets down comparatively just

Widener Cites Absence Of Poor Folk at Track As Race Bill Argument

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Possibly he was misquoted, a handy prerogative of the best people, who have a tendency to pop off with tactless remarks, but the record of Mr. Joseph E. Widener's address before the State Legislature of Florida on behalf of the pari-mutuel bill, which finally passed, only to be vetoed by the governor, is not likely to endear him or his kind with the sort of people who go in overalls with plaster on their shoes, but vote at the polls nevertheless.

In defending the sport, or racket, horse racing as something fine and admirable, Mr. Widener produced a photograph of the crowd which attended the running of the Florida Derby, in Miami, last winter, and passing it around among the members of the legislative committee, called their attention to the wealthy appearance of all present. It was a very refined element, indeed, said he, and a credit to any community, and then he said, "Lou will see that there is not a poorly dressed person in the crowd."

Should Be Okay With Poor Folk.

That ought to be just dandy with thhe poorly dressed element who have always swung a fairly big vote in all countries and put Mr. Widener in solid as the people's choice. But at least Mr. Widener must be given credit for the courage of his opinions. Poorly dressed people are not his sort of people, they haven't the money to attend horse races and bet on them, they can't support a resort like Miami, Fla., and, except to work for wages clearing the bad lands and building houses, a line which has been projected several years in advance of the demand in Florida, they have little business in such a country.

But, reading Mr. Widener's remarks over again and marveling at the man's candor or his insularity, I am reminded that rags are royal raiment when worn for virtue's sake. The very picture which Mr. Widener passed around among the members of the legislative committee in Tallahassee I have not seen, but I have seen in the favorite journals of the horse race racket at various times many photographs of well-dressed, smiling groups in expensive flannels and panamas from which any city detective, with a fairly extensive acquaintance among the better-known miscreants could pick at least three or four confidence men, wire tappers, master bootleggers and possibly a couple of kidnapers and murderers; and I can not see how Mr. Widener he is, can help knowing that is so.

Permit Racketeers To Operate.

In fact, I have for a long time been on the point of inquiring why the horse track people, of whom Mr. Widener is the one most influential person, with their absolute arbitrary powers to grant or refuse licenses, without giving any explanations to any one, continue to permit racketeers of great renown to own horses and operate them in the races, disguising their ownership under the gauziest pretenses or none at all.

The horse track people, such as the owners of both Whitney stables, Mr.

Florida Race Bill Is Vetoed Emphatically by Governor

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 29 (A.P.).—Gov. Doyle Carlton today vetoed the first racing bill ever passed by a Florida Legislature.

Gov. Carlton sent his veto message to the State Senate late in the afternoon. It was read and placed at the top of the Senate calendar. Under rules of procedure, it will have first order of consideration at the next regular session of the Senate.

A two-thirds vote of members present in both the Senate and the House of Representatives will be necessary to override the veto. The Senate passed the bill, 20 to 15, and the House approved it, 55 to 38.

The measure would legalize horse and dog racing in Florida and permit use of parimutuel wagering systems at tracks.

Gov. Carlton said in his message he disapproved of the bill because he considered it unsound and unwise from an economic, political and moral standpoint to commit the Senate to a partnership in legalized gambling in any form."

The chief executive also urged upon the legislature "the immediate passage of a law so explicit as to make the use of any system heretofore employed or which may hereafter be devised impossible."

He said he was urged by the attorney general and the assistant attorney general of Kentucky to veto the bill.

25,000 Seats on Sale For Double Bill Today

Although most of the reserved seats for this afternoon's double-header with the Yankees have been sold, approximately 25,000 are available at Griffith Stadium today on the first come, first served basis. Nearly half of these are grandstand seats as only the first five rows and the boxes in the grandstand are reserved.

Play starts at 1:30 and the gates will be opened at 11 o'clock, with the amplifiers providing a musical entertainment for the early comers.

Scalzi, Georgetown Star, Reports to Braves June 15

JOHNNY SCALZI, Georgetown University star in three sports, has signed a contract with the Boston Braves and will join them about June 15 in the Hub City, it was learned last night.

Although he has played at second base throughout his Georgetown career, Scalzi will go to the Braves as a third baseman, it was said. He performed at third at Stamford (Conn.) High before enrolling at the Hilltop.

Scalzi attracted much attention in college ranks last spring when he accepted 117 chances while playing second base without making an error. His batting has not quite reached the standard of his fielding but has been of a timely type with much power behind his swings. College outfields have usually played far back for him.

A good student, Scalzi is slated for graduation within a few days. He is 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weighs 165 pounds.

Today he will enter the Georgetown Hospital for the removal of his tonsils. The operation was suggested by a physician after Scalzi complained for two or three weeks of a sore right arm.

JAMESTOWN MEETS FAST FIELD IN WITHERS TODAY

Whitney Pair Rated Chief Contenders

Sizzly Early Pace Is Expected; Record Is Threatened.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, May 29 (A.P.).—Opposed by nine of the East's crack milers, George D. Widener's Jamestown, winner of the 1930 juvenile title, opens his campaign to supplant Twenty Grand as the Nation's leading 3-year-old in the fifty-sixth running of the Withers, at Belmont Park tomorrow.

Although he has faced the barrier only once, and that in a cheap condition affair last Wednesday, the big bay son of St. James, which won six of his seven starts as a 2-year-old, stands out as the only colt capable of challenging Twenty Grand for the 3-year-old championship.

Jamestown will not match strides with Twenty Grand until the Belmont Stakes, June 13, but tomorrow's race will go a long ways toward determining the Widener ace's chance of defeating the Kentucky Derby winner from the Greentree Stable. Although Trainer James Rowe decided to withhold his star for the mile and one-half Belmont, he has nominated two of his fleetest—Surf Board and Anchors Aweigh—to dispute the mile test with Jamestown.

Jamestown Even-Money Favorite.

With the promise of a lightning fast track and midsummer weather, Jamestown will go to the post the even-money favorite with the Greentree entry the second choice at 5 to 2 or better. The track record of 1:35 is held by Jack High, another member of the Widener Stable, but it would not be surprising to see a fifth of a second clipped off the mark tomorrow.

In his debut Jamestown did not show any too much speed from the barrier, but at the end "Pony" McAtee had him covering the ground like a fleet hare. Running the same kind of a race tomorrow, he is likely to be several lengths back of the leader when the field hits the stretch, but like Twenty Grand, he has shown he can fairly burn up that stretch.

Although not rated as anything better than a high-class sprinter, it would not be surprising if Benjamin Block's Morstone will be close to Jamestown at the finish. At least he will be out in front as far as he goes, and a recent mile in 1:37 2-5 indicates he is no slow poke at the Withers distance. The Block speed marvel is being held at 10 to 1.

Sizzly Early Pace Expected.

With Morstone out in front, the early pace probably will be sizzling, as Morton L. Schwartz has entered Clock Tower, the colt that showed the way to Twenty Grand for the greater part of the mile and 70 yards Wood Memorial. The Schwartz speedster is even more highly regarded than Morstone, being quoted at 4 to 1 on the early lines.

Katherine E. Hitt's Sun Meadow apparently has recovered from a coughing spell that held him out of the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby, but he is considered to have no better than a 20-to-1 chance, the same as Walter J. Salmon's Ladder, which finished third in the Preakness.

W. R. Coe's Polydorus chased Jamestown home in the latter's debut but will have to improve greatly as the shifting in weights is all in advantage of the Widener colt. D. C. Sands' My Broom and the Flying Horse Farms' Commuter complete the field.

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

WASHINGTON PARK, Ill., May 29.—A double feature attraction will usher in the first Saturday's racing at the popular Washington Park course tomorrow afternoon. The twin fixtures on the highly interesting Memorial Day card are the Debutante Stakes, for 2-year-old fillies, at 5½ furlongs, and the Robert M. Sweitzer Handicap, for 3-year-olds and upward, over the 1⅛ miles route.

Both events received a large list of nominations for the features. The juvenile dash will bring together a field of twelve to contest the $5,000 added value of the purse. In the cofeature, a list of nine of the leading routers in the Middle West will contest the issue, which also carries a $5,000 added purse.

In the Debutante Stakes, the Leiter entry of PRINCESS IVRE and PRINCESS A. A. appear well suited by the conditions and figure to annex the major portion of the stake. The former was beaten a head in her last start and has shown improvement over her previous efforts. CHU CHU, from the Headley Stable, scored an impressive victory in her last trial at the Downs and is reported in prime condition. GALA FLIGHT has turned in some fast morning workouts and is favored for the show award.

The Robert M. Sweitzer Handicap, at the 9 furlong route, favors the chances of GALLANT KNIGHT, the Audley Farm's fleet colt. The son of Bright Knight shipped well after his sterling performance in the Grainger Memorial over the 1¼ miles distance at the Downs. E. F. Pritchard's smart 4-year-old, TANNERY, defeated a high-class field of sprinters in his previous outing, but at the longer route may finish in the runner-up position. JEAN LAFITTE has raced consistently of late and is accorded the show call.

FIRST RACE—In the opening dash of 5 furlongs, PRINCE SWEEP should graduate. He set the pace in his last effort, but tired in the closing strides. Should show enough improvement to crash the winner's circle. K. RUSSELL has disappointed recently, but may go well against this band of nonwinners. FOX CHASE raced greenly in his debut, but finished second in that effort.

SECOND RACE—Another limit list of twenty 3-year-old platers were received in this six-furlong dash. JACK HOWE, from J. C. Ellis' string, and winner of his last start, is favored over this large group. RACKETEER scored over a distance last time, but showed enough early foot to force the pace. GOLD RUSH is slowly attaining his best form and should get into the picture.

THIRD RACE—SCOTLAND'S GLORY, a triple winner at the Downs, was outmatched in his last effort, but against this company figures to annex the purse. HARRY KUHNS has worked well and should lead ILIUM in a struggle for the place.

FIFTH RACE—WEE DROP should show the way to her nineteen rivals in this mile and 70 yard gallop. She has been rested up since her last victorious start at Churchill and figures best of the band of platers. SAN PRESTO raced well over a soft track and should last to save the place. PRINCESS TELL has displayed a high turn of speed in recent trials and is ready to contest the issue.

SEVENTH RACE—HERENDEEN is selected for premier honors. He was weakly ridden last start and with better handling should score. SILVER SCEPTER, from the W. Phillips string, finished third in his previous outing and is given the place call. WOODLOT and MOSQUE are favored to battle it out for the short end of the purse.

merely a bruise and he thinks it is about time for Liska to show something. The underhand flinger showed an early flash, but since has had neither his usual speed nor a good curve and the Nat leader has told him that he must hit his stride shortly or it is liable to cost him some pay.

Pitcher Fred Marberry, who injured a muscle in his groin in New York last Saturday, has been improving steadily and the club physician stated last night that he thought the big Texan could start work Monday and that he would probably be able to take an assignment by Thursday or Friday.

Joe Judge, the other casual, was thrown back in his recuperation from an appendicitis operation by some complications. It is expected that he will start getting himself in playing condition within a week.

Heinie Manush, withdrawn during Thursday's play in Boston because of a slight indisposition, is expected to be back in the line-up against the Yankees this afternoon.

Manager Johnson intimated yesterday that he thought that Sam Rice needed a rest and it is possible that Harry Rice will draw the right-field assignment today, in one of the games, at least.

Error in Tenth Aids Cubs to Beat Pirates

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 29 (A.P.).—Grantham's fumble of Jurges' grounder, a sacrifice and a single by Moore gave Chicago a run in the tenth and the Cubs defeated Pittsburgh, 4-3, today.

Traynor's fumble in the seventh opened the way for two Chicago runs. Then Paul Waner tripled to tie up the game in the Pirate half of the inning.

Kremer pitched the entire game for the Pirates. Malone opposed him for seven innings, Root finishing.

Cards Beat Reds, 14-9; Tie Giants for Lead

St. Louis, May 29 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals tonight shared the top berth in the National League with the New York Giants by virtue of defeating the Cincinnati Reds here today, 14-9.

Both teams pulled out of a batting slump and slugged enough hits for two or three average ball games. It was Burleigh Grimes' sixth victory. Taylor Douthit and Charley Gelbert accounted for six of the Redbirds' fourteen runs, with the others sprinkled down the line. Chick Hafey hit a homer into the left field bleachers in the sixth.

Indians Deal Detroit 12th Loss in 14 Games

Detroit, Mich., May 29 (A.P.).—The Tigers continued their losing ways today, dropping a baseball game, 9-2, to the Cleveland Indians to make it an even dozen losses in fourteen starts.

The Indians made four runs in the first inning, due to a pair of walks off Bridges, an error by Johnson, Tiger right fielder; a triple by Vosmik, and a double by Sewell. During the course of this activity Kamm stole two bases, later in the game he added a couple more. Bridges gave way to Waite Hoyt in the fourth inning, but the Indians found him for six more hits. Clinton Brown, on the mound for Cleveland, allowed eight hits.

A ball bounced from the fence and hit Jonathan Stone, Detroit left fielder, on the head to add another name to the Tiger hospital list for at least two days.

MRS. MECKLEY RETAINS WASHINGTON GOLF TITLE

Mrs. Haynes Defeated on Last Hole

Leads by 2 Up After 10th Hole, But Is Overtaken.

Mrs. Meckley Aided by 2 Stymies on Inward Nine.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE battle of the champions, played yesterday on the course of the Chevy Chase Club, with the title of woman golf champion of the District to be won or lost, resulted in a victory on the final green for Mrs. Betty Meckley, of Indian Spring and the defending title holder, over Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, of Columbia, who won the championship six years ago. The match was followed by a large gallery of women players.

At the end of the first nine Mrs. Haynes was 1 up, with a card of 45, as against 48 scored by Mrs. Meckley. The playing of the nine as an exhibition of championship golf was not inspiring. Mrs. Meckley losing two holes because of her inability to play out of traps with less than two strokes, and with two 7s and two 6s on her card.

The match on the first nine was of the seesaw variety, Mrs. Haynes winning the second, fifth and seventh holes, while Mrs. Meckley captured the second and the fourth, with all the other holes halved. Both players were driving well, but Mrs. Haynes was weak in her approaches and was playing all her shots with too little deliberation.

Mrs. Meckley Loses 10th When Trapped.

When Mrs. Haynes won the tenth hole in a par 3, Mrs. Meckley losing when she was once more tangled up in a trap, Mrs. Haynes had secured a 2-hole lead. She lost this advantage, however, when Mrs. Meckley ran down a single putt on the eleventh green for a par 4 and then scored another par 4 on the twelfth. On the latter hole Mrs. Meckley had a fortunate break, for her second shot, instead of coming to rest in the sand, rolled between an array of forbidding bunkers and reached the green.

With the match all even, both players drove the thirteenth green, 173 yards, but Mrs. Haynes won the hole by running down a long putt for a birdie 2. Then Mrs Haynes lost the fourteenth by a succession of costly errors, flubbing her second shot out of the rough into a trap and then playing into the ditch in a vain effort to reach the green. The fifteenth was halved in 5s.

Stymie Marks Crucial 16th Hole.

The crucial point of the match came on the sixteenth hole when Mrs. Haynes was prevented from winning by a hopeless stymie laid by her opponent and had to be content with a half, keeping the match still all even. On the seventeenth Mrs. Haynes, after another weak approach, took two putts while Mrs. Meckley, who had played strongly to the pin, ran down one putt for a par 4.

Mrs. Meckley, now 1 up, needed only a half of the final green to win. Her second shot was a few yards short of the green, but Mrs. Haynes' second landed on top of the left-hand trap. She played a fine shot to the green, leaving her a 10-foot putt for a 4. Mrs. Meckley overapproached with her third and in putting below the cup on her fourth stroke, again laid Mrs. Haynes a complete stymie. Mrs. Haynes endeavored to hole out, but her ball collided with Mrs. Meckley's ball, necessitating the half which was all Mrs. Meckley required to end the match.

Last night Mrs. Meckley was given a dinner at the Indian Spring Club in honor of her victory and in celebration of her birthday. The cards:

Mrs. Meckley..5 6 5 3 7 5 7 6 4—48
Mrs. Haynes...5 5 6 4 5 5 6 6 4—45

as fine a point by stationing a net umpire on the sidelines to detect by the infallible procedure of holding a finger to the net throughout the match, whether or not a serve has tipped the webbing and nullified a shot. That's efficiency.

But that's getting away from non-playing captains, which originally was the subject of this piece. I shall write a letter to the reader's corner urging very strongly that playing members of the American team be vested with the honor in keeping with the general movement seeking to give the game back to the boys.

In the improbable event that the office wag ever masters the intricacies of his mashie niblick, I suppose I shall have to take all this back.

Navy Plebe-Local High Games Favored by Hart

Eastern Principal Replies to Navy Proposal, Stating Approval by Local Board Is Believed Certain.

THE first step toward the adoption of the Naval Academy's plan for a yearly meeting between the Plebes and the champion local high school track and baseball teams, to be staged on the last Saturday in May, beginning in 1932, was accomplished yesterday when Charles Hart, principal of Eastern High, responded to a letter from Lieut. Comdr. Fred C. Reinecke seeking the views of the board of high school principals on the proposed action.

In replying that he would present the Navy's letter to the board of principals at their next regular meeting, and that he felt certain that it would meet with speedy approval, Mr. Hart also made the suggestion that, while the champion baseball team of the local high schools probably could offer the Navy Plebes much in the way of competition, he felt that the results of last Saturday's dual meet between Eastern and the Annapolis Yearlings proved conclusively that the city could not develop high school track and field performers in the same class as could the Navy.

As a preventative of a recurrence as of Saturday, when the Plebes defeated Eastern, 87-30, Mr. Hart inquired of the Navy whether it would be in favor of having its Plebe team meet what amounts to an all-high track team. The local team would be made up of the winners of the first three places in every event in the annual interhigh meet.

WIDENER POINTS OUT THE "BEST" PEOPLE

Widener himself, William Woodward and so on, all very rich and undeniably honest and refined, are fond of representing racing as the most choosey professional sport in the country. Yet any one who has put in a total of ten days at a racetrack could point out owners of horses who would never be allowed to buy a major league baseball club and would even have trouble obtaining permission to manage prize fighters.

Poor Folk Have No Money to Bet.

Mr. Widener would have been quite right if he had told the Florida legislature that the horse people didn't want any of the local, working class population around their track at Miami, because racing was a sport for people who had, one way or another, acquired plenty of money, and that the other kind, when they took to betting and, of course, losing, only caused trouble. But the point that because the people in the picture were well dressed and therefore generally desirable, considered with the fact that most racketeers command good tailors, was not too well put. The Commoner Mr. Bryan used to preach of Sundays in the public parks at Miami, sometimes combining the commercial with the spiritual by serving as capper for a real estate subdivision, it is true, and it is just as well for the horse people that he was not present at Tallahassee to take the floor in defense of those who wear their glory inside. None of us in this country are many generations away from overalls and shoes with plaster on them.

Another interesting remark of Mr. Widener's had to do with the adoption of the modified mutuel system in Miami last winter. His track was compelled to substitute the modified mutuels for the New York oral system of betting at the last moment before the start of the winter racing season, and this substitution required them to obtain a layout and pay a royalty of more than $100,000 to the ingenious parties who had devised the system.

When Mr. Widener was asked to say who ordered him to put in the modified mutuel, which he frankly described as a camouflaged mutuel system, he said it was the Sheriff of Miami who had sent him the word. This is very interesting. I have always thought that if I were a politician of a certain type the job I would most prefer would be that of Sheriff of Miami, Fla.

Maryland-Navy Lacrosse Game Feature at Annapolis

Middies Meet Ohio State in Baseball and Track; D. C. Guards Offer Opposition to Rifle Team.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 29.—The Annapolis Midshipmen will tomorrow ring down the curtain on the 1931 spring athletic program, staging a card of five contests as a feature of commencement week events that were ushered in today.

Featuring the card will be lacrosse with the University of Maryland, and baseball and field and track competition with representatives of Ohio State University. Other events will be a rifle match with the District of Columbia National Guardsmen, and lacrosse between the Navy Plebes and University of Maryland freshmen.

The varsity lacrosse game is expected to develop into one of the greatest battles ever staged on the academy field. The Middies are undefeated this season, while Maryland bowed only to the crack St. John's twelve of Annapolis. Since that licking two weeks ago, the Terps came back to dispose of Johns Hopkins, strong contender for national honors this year. Maryland appears to have something of an edge on the Tars, but the latter are prepared to run the invaders ragged in their efforts to win.

Heading the Ohio State group of athletes will be "Wes" Fesler, of football, baseball and basket ball fame, who is conceded by many to be the outstanding college athlete of the year. It was reported here today that Fesler may step out of the baseball line-up to take part in the field and track meet, his desire being to earn if possible his fourth letter before leaving the Buckeye State institution. In the event that he does forsake the tossers, it is said he will enter the 100 and 220 yard dashes, broad jump and javelin throw. To gain the coveted letter Fesler would have to win two of the four events.

The Middies surely have their work cut out for them in the lacrosse game and the double meeting with Ohio State, but they are on edge for each encounter.

Nichols' Card Wins In Beaver Dam Golf

The tournament of the Insurance Claim Adjusters, played on the Beaver Dam course for a cup donated by D. G. Morris, was won by Ormond D. Nichols with a card of 108—37—71. D. A. Nichols and Hamilton Osborn were the second and third prize winners. In the blind bogey, the lucky number being 74, there was a tie between E. B. Christensen and R. J. Hoag, while W. B. Sullivan won the prize for the highest score, 147. After the tournament the players were entertained at a dinner in the clubhouse.

BOARD IN CLARENDON ORDERS SIDEWALKS

Work Alongside Clements Avenue Is Authorized by Supervisors.

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF TH POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The county board of supervisors, meeting yesterday at the courthouse, authorized the construction of sidewalks along Clements avenue in Clarendon leading to Washington-Lee High School, along the Lee highway to Robert E. Lee School and along Wilson boulevard to Woodrow Wilson School.

The county engineer was instructed to visit property owners along Wilson boulevard in the vicinity of Woodrow Wilson School to determine from what point the sidewalk will start.

Disregarding the legal opinion given by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth that the board was without power to authorize payment of a bill presented from the county coroner, Dr. B. H. Swain, for services rendered prisoners, the board, on motion of Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, unanimously ordered the bill paid. Gloth noted an appeal from the decision of the board.

Gloth contended the State paid such bills and provided a fee of 75 cents a visit.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields told the board he would not be responsible for any prisoner who might be brought into the jail cut up as the result of an automobile accident and who, if not given immediate treatment, might bleed to death.

Contract for resurfacing county roads was awarded the firm of Carson & Gruman, of Washington.

In response to a request from the board, a representative from the Virginia Public Service Co. appeared on the question of free lights to the various fire departments in the county.

The board was advised that the State Corporation Commission will not permit a utility to give free lights. The matter will be considered further by the Electric Light Co. and a further report submitted to the board at its June meeting.

Attacking the policy of the board to do away with the several hydrants where citizens are now obtaining free water, J. G. Pepper, of Barcroft, said, "It is nothing short of an outrage."

The board explained that it is not doing away with the hydrants, but relocating them where they are most needed.

Chairman Duncan stated that any application for installation of a hydrant where persons can not tap the mains will receive immediate consideration of the board.

Convicted Robber Held in Knifing

Motive for Allers' Killing Still Being Sought by Prison Officials.

Baltimore, May 29 (A.P.).—Edward West, serving twenty years for robbery, was presented today by the grand jury on a charge that he fatally stabbed Frank Allers on Sunday, a few hours before Allers was to be released from the Maryland Penitentiary.

Allers, driver of the automobile used in the fatal holdup in 1922 of William B. Norris, a contractor, turned State's evidence and helped convict four accomplices, who were given life sentences.

Presentment under Maryland court practice is usually equivalent to indictment. West, sentenced only a few months ago, had no known connection with the Norris gang, according to officials, and a motive for the stabbing was lacking today after five days of investigation.

441 WILL GRADUATE AT NAVAL ACADEMY

356 Midshipmen to Be Given Line Commissions; Week's Festivities Begun.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 29.—Although a grand total of 441 midshipmen will receive diplomas as graduates of the Naval Academy next Thursday, 85 will not be commissioned in the regular line of the Navy, it was announced today by authorities of the institution.

Of these 85, 36 will resign voluntarily to launch upon business careers, 24 have elected to accept commissions as second lieutenants in the Marine Corps, 12 will be commissioned ensigns in the Supply Corps, 12 have been found physically disqualified and will therefore resign, and one, a Filipino, will not be commissioned at all. The latter is Jose Francesco, who attained a good scholastic record, who will return to a post in his native heath. This leaves 356 to receive commissions as ensigns in the line.

Prominent Cadets Resign.

Two of those to resign have been outstanding in their class, namely, Maurice W. Hibschman, Spokane, Wash., and Dale A. Bauer, North Platte, Nebr. Hibschman was the regimental commander this year and one of the leading students scholastically. Bauer attained prominence along athletic lines. He is a three-letter man, being a member of the varsity football, basket ball and field and track teams.

The festivities leading up to commencement day officially swung into action today. There were no formal functions on the program, however, an informal dance in Dahlgren Hall this afternoon and an open air band concert tonight being the chief numbers. The regiment of nearly 2,000 had a respite from academic routine and made the most of mingling with relatives and girl friends foregathered for the major events in the offing.

Tomorrow will be alumni and athletic day. Many old grads are on hand for the annual reunion and business meeting in the afternoon, and the banquet at night. In the forenoon ceremonies in dedication of "Thompson Stadium" on the grounds of Farragut Field, which contains the football and field and track oval, will take place. The dedication will be in memory of Col. Robert M. Thompson, class of 1868, friend and benefactor of the academy, especially along athletic lines.

Will Stage Sports Events.

In the early afternoon midshipmen field and track athletes will meet Ohio State within the stadium. Other outstanding features of the sport program will be baseball with Ohio State and lacrosse with University of Maryland. A rifle match with District of Columbia National Guard and lacrosse between Navy Plebes and University of Maryland freshmen also are scheduled. A dance in Dahlgren Hall will bring the day's events to a close.

The battleships Arkansas and Wyoming arrived in the bay off Annapolis today, ready to take aboard the midshipmen of the new first and third classes on the summer practice cruise which will be to Northern European waters. The squadron, under the command of Rear Admiral Clark C. Bloch, will sail next Friday.

KENSINGTON BRIDGE SITE IS INDORSED

Bruce Testifies Before Road Commission Regarding Railway Overpass.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Howard Bruce, former member of the Maryland State Roads Commission, yesterday testified before a commissioner in Baltimore regarding location of the overhead bridge at Kensington over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks at the Lincoln avenue site. The testimony was taken by Commissioner Arthur McGee, who was appointed by Judge Robert B. Peter of Montgomery County Circuit Court.

Mr. Bruce, who is an engineer, said he had viewed the various sites eight times before making a decision, and that other engineers had concurred in his belief that the Lincoln avenue site was the most feasible, both from the standpoint of construction cost and traffic flexibility.

Nine Kensington citizens had filed suit for an injunction, declaring the roads commission arbitrarily decided upon the site without due process of law and without regard to engineering factors.

A cross bill filed later by Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, counsel to the county commissioners and special counsel with Assistant Attorney General Robert Archer for the roads commission, asked that the injunction be dismissed, inasmuch as legal technicalities have been complied with.

Bruce's testimony is expected to complete examination in the case and a stenographic copy will be presented within a short time to Judge Peter for consideration.

The plaintiffs are represented by the law firm of Peter Simpson & Oxley and Attorney Harold C. Smith, of Rockville.

The finance committee of the Greater Montgomery County, Inc., which will publish a booklet on Montgomery County's advantages, commercial and residential, will begin active solicitation of funds next week, it was announced yesterday.

The committee met Thursday night to discuss plans for the campaign, which is to raise $10,000 to finance the booklet. Another meeting will be held June 10.

Holding Maryland law has definitely decided that mere inadequacy of price is not sufficient grounds to vacate a sale unless it be so gross and inordinate as to indicate mistake or unfairness for which the purchaser is responsible, or misconduct or fraud on the part of the trustees or mortgagees making the sale, Judge Robert B. Peter, in circuit court at Rockville, has dismissed a suit by Mr. and Mrs. H. Latane Lewis, asking the court to vacate the sale of their property at Bethesda.

The Lewis property was sold at public auction several months ago under a deed of trust held by Homer Phillips, of Washington, for $9,900, which the Lewises held grossly inadequate.

Two suits have been filed in Circuit Court at Rockville naming the Maryland Gas Transmission Co. as defendant. Mrs. Julia P. Anderson and Thomas M. Anderson, both of Rockville, ask damages of $3,000 for alleged damages to both sides of the right of way used by the company in laying gas mains. Mrs. Clara A. Griffith asks $1,000 damages for alleged unauthorized entry to her land and unauthorized use in connection with the laying of gas mains.

Members of the seventh grade of the Jefferson, Mount Vernon and Lee-Jackson Public Schools, the last named in Fairfax County, just over the city line on Duke street, were the guests last night of the Scottish Rite Masons of Alexandria at a dinner in Odd Fellows Hall, North Columbus street, which was served by a committee of ladies under the direction of Miss Cora Cochran.

H. H. Porter, venerable master of the Lodge of Perfection, which lodge was host to the pupils, presided. The Rev. E. V. Regester, D. D., presiding elder of the Alexandria District of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, offered the invocation and then addressed the pupils on the subject of education.

Sutton and the Scottish Rite Orchestra, composed of Alvin Friedlander, Samuel Wade and J. I. Scruggs. Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Memorial Day exercises will be held by Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, in Gadsby's Tavern, at 12:30 o'clock today, when an address will be delivered by Capt. Thurlow White, a member of the post. Yesterday graves of the deceased veterans were decorated with flags by members of the American Legion Auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Charles M. The retail stores in Alexandria will be open as usual today, but Government and city offices, including the city postoffice, and all banks, will be closed the entire day.

A letter has been sent out to many Alexandrians by Gardner L. Boothe, local chairman, and Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith, vice chairman of the Children's Home Society of Virginia, in the interest of the State-wide drive to raise $50,000 so that the home in Richmond may continue to function. The organization now faces closing its doors unless funds can be obtained to meet the $50,000 deficit.

In their letter, Mr. Boothe and Mrs. Smith explain that the Children's Home Society of Virginia does not in any way conflict with any local charity or organization. It is also explained that 82 of the 100 counties in Virginia have no local departments of public welfare.

Ernest H. Curran, 37, of Fort Myer, employed by the Shell Oil Co., at their Alexandria plant, was burned about the face, arms and hands yesterday when a fire broke out in the company's pump house at Montgomery and Fairfax streets. Curran was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Samuel B. Moore. He is said to be rapidly recovering from his injuries.

Engine Company No. 1 responded to the alarm, and the fire was extinguished with trifling loss. It is believed by Fire Chief J. M. Duncan, jr., to have been caused by defective electric wiring.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

CAROL DISMISSES THE QUEEN.

QUEEN HELEN of Roumania is reported to have been dismissed from membership in the royal family. The action was taken at a meeting at which there was a quorum consisting of King Carol and four mirrors.

* * * *

The rules are very clear. They provide that a Queen of Roumania may be dropped from the rolls on 24 hours' notice. All that is necessary is a complaint by the king to the king. In case of an appeal the matter goes to the king.

* * * *

When Carol did a royal scram, abandoned his rights to the throne and left the queen and his son to get along on their own, Helen took it philosophically and gracefully. She wrote no book about it and didn't tell all for the news-reel talkies.

* * * *

This alone is pretty unethical these days. Furthermore, Helen violated the conventions when Carol changed his mind, left Mme. Lupescu and returned to the palace. She refused to take him back. He may have been a king to the Roumanians, but he was just a loose character to Helen.

* * * *

Looking back over their married life, the queen can hardly understand how Carol managed to remain long enough for the honeymoon. He had more vanishing acts than the late Houdini.

* * * *

"Here today and care of general delivery tomorrow!" was the king's motto.

* * * *

"The king can do no wrong" is an old royal slogan, but Carol never gave up trying.

* * * *

WHEN Carol came back, after a few years with the other woman, he demanded the customary salute, a few royal cheers and a letter from the queen saying he had never been away.

* * * *

Helen was a proud beauty. She refused to play the part of an imperial door mat. She made the king send up his card and then sent back word that she didn't want any ice today.

* * * *

This was insubordination, conduct unbecoming a deserted mother, breach of contract, lese majesty, violation of the reparations agreement, a slap at the kingly ego and a refusal to consider herself part of the lease.

* * * *

For a time the king skulked. Then he commanded. Then he complained to his own personal house committee and had the queen given a royal veto. It was a royal bridge game and the king took her out in spades.

* * * *

Helen was resting comfortably at last reports. She knew her bad luck couldn't last forever.

Features in Sunday's Post

One of the most glorious careers in Army service in recent years is being brought to a close by Maj. Gen. M. W. Ireland as Surgeon-General. His record and the administrations of his predecessors in keeping the fighting man fit are the subject for an interesting article in Sunday's Post by David Rankin Barbee.

Seventy years ago the Merrimac and the Monitor fought an epoch-making battle in Hampton Roads. The birth of our armored Navy in this thrilling clash is described in the tabloid section of Sunday's Post.

"The State Which Fooled the Prophets" is an article telling how Virginia sent the predictions of the "wise men" a-glimmering when they figured that her era of glory had gone down to the grave with her sons who played so vital a part in founding the Nation.

In another article Maxfield Parrish discloses some of the secrets which reared him to the summits in art. This master of color, mass and line tells also how he happened to discover the blue which is the most familiar characteristic of his work.
